ON MONDAY night, to amuse a typical prize ring assemblage, a boy of seventeen, Leo Maham, amateur and inexperienced, fought and was knocked unconscious. Yesterday he died; a blow in the stomach did it.

If you ask why a country forbidding assault and battery on the street permits that brutality in the prize ring, the answer is that prize fighting is profitable, politicians get part of the profit, and make laws accordingly.

AT TREVES in France archeologists have unearthed a temple built by ancient Gauls, fearing "only that the sky will fall upon us," as they said to Alexander. They erected it to the Persian god, Mithras, once

POLICE GO FOR PONZI; TEXAS MOTION FAILS

Charles Ponzi has failed in his effort to block his return to Massachusetts as a "common and notorious thief." At Austin, Texas, today, his motion for a rehearing in the habeas corpus action was denied by the Texas Criminal Court of Appeals.

This defeat sounds the death knell in Ponzi's fight unless he turns to the U. S. Supreme Court. His chance of success in this final resort is considered so remote that his attorneys will not even bother to make the effort, it is believed.

Inspector John Mitchell of the attorney-general's office will leave for Texas to bring Ponzi back here just as soon as official notification of the court's action is received Mitchell plans on leaving [illegible] tonight

PRESENT LOVE LETTERS OF 'PEACHES' AT TRIAL OF 'CINDERELLA' CASE

White Plains, N. Y., Jan. 26.—Charges that Edward W. Browning had offered to "make it interesting" for her if she would "recollect" any occurrences that might act against "Peaches" in the trial of the Browning separation suit, were made today by Miss Marian Tussey, friend of Mrs. Browning before her marriage.

Miss Tussey said she was approached last Saturday by a man, who after meeting her on a pretext that her landlord wished to see her, had introduced her to Browning.

"I am a ruined man and you can help me," the witness quoted Browning as having said.

Browning, she said, asked questions about "Peaches'" life and association before her marriage.

The trial was suddenly adjourned today until Monday morning after chief counsel for "Peaches" announced he would call but one more witness—a witness not available at today's session.

FINGERPRINT CLUES ON SLAIN GIRL'S UMBRELLA

Finger prints found today on the red silk umbrella of Maybelle Matheson, murdered West Roxbury girl, assumed vast importance in the hunt for a clue to her slayer.

When the finger prints were detected Inspector James Claflin, one of the foremost experts in America, who identified the notorious marauder known as the "Lone Wolf," went to work at West Roxbury police station.

Charles Nickerson, who found the umbrella in the bog field where the murder was committed, was called to the police station so that prints he may have left on the umbrella could be eliminated.

Three men were called to police headquarters and questioned today by Chief Inspector Ainslee C. Armstrong. He said they were not suspects but he would not divulge what information they gave him or why he questioned them independently of the investigation being conducted by other officers at West Roxbury police station.

Draining of the pond in the field was completed today but the murder weapon was not found. After laboring for hours with great difficulty, because of an intensely cold

6 LIVES IN PERIL ON 2 BARGES ADRIFT IN GALE

Highland Light, North Truro, Jan. 26.—A thrilling drama of a gale-lashed sea was being enacted off here today when two tugs, one of them the Jupiter of the Neptune line of Boston, and the other unidentified, battled with giant seas to wrest from certain death six or more men on two barges that had broken adrift when tow lines snapped like mere strings.

It was No. 3 barge, believed to be the Solitaire, ice-coated and deeply laden with coal for Boston, that broke away from the Jupiter's string of three, and with its crew of three or more men, crashed on toward the shoals off Monomoy Point.

The Jupiter later went to the craft's assistance. The other tug

Draining Death Field Pond

Went Riding With Victim

MAYBELLE MATHESON

West Roxbury slayer's victim as friends remember her when she attended dances and other social events.

LETTER 18 DAYS ON WAY TO SLAIN GIRL FROM HOME

Eighteen days on the way from Nova Scotia, a letter addressed to Maybelle Matheson, slain West Roxbury girl, reached Boston today. It was from a sister of the dead girl.

Postal authorities turned it over to the police who, after reading it and finding that it contained nothing useful in the search for the slayer, gave it to Maybelle's aunt and uncle.

The letter was written January 3 and mailed January 8 in Whycocomagh, Inverness County, Cape Breton.

DRAINED POND FAILS TO GIVE UP DEATH WEAPON

Workmen today resumed the task of draining the shallow pond in the death field between Baker, Gardner and Spring streets. Not only did they search for the weapon of death but other tell-tale clues were sought after the water was drained off. It is expected that the combing of the pond will be finished today.

HER COMPANION ON AUTO RIDES

Lincoln Kennedy of Needham, an employe of the Armstrong Knitting Mill where the slain girl worked, said she had gone riding with him.

JEALOUS WOMAN BELIEVED TO HAVE ACTUALLY SLAIN OR INSTIGATED DEATH OF GIRL

wind, workmen of the sewer division of the Public Works Department, under Foreman John Collins, found nothing under the ice but meaningless debris.

There was no sign of either the weapon or the victim's missing cameo brooch.

Among other things found in the bed of the pond were an automobile crank handle and a broken spring leaf with a jagged edge, but these were discarded by the police as possible clews in the mystery.

A determined effort was begun by the investigating authorities to ferret out the elusive facts regarding letters said to have been received by Maybelle under an assumed name at the general delivery window of a branch postoffice.

A woman, insane with jealousy, either committed the murder or instigated the crime, according to one theory on which the police are working.

Several bitter quarrels between Maybelle and other girls in the past came to the attention of the authorities in support of this theory.

Medical Examiner Leary, queried about this feature of the case, gave an opinion that a man did the actual killing, but his report did not preclude the possibility that a woman instigated it.

The young Nova Scotia girl unquestionably had an attraction for men, a remarkable attraction when her comparative youth and rural up-bringing is considered. In her letters to her real sweetheart, Bernard McDougall, she laughingly boasts of her conquests, both among the young men who attended dances with her, and more elderly and wealthier admirers.

ATTACKED AT DANCE

But there is more than a possibility, the investigators point out, that other women did not look upon these conquests from the humorous angle that Maybelle evidently took of them.

There were wives and sweethearts, who saw the men they loved trailing after the girl from the knitting mill. Many a murder, they point out, has had no deeper motive than that of one woman scorned for another.

This jealousy against Maybelle had flared out on at least two occasions, according to the most recent developments unearthed by the police.

At a Roxbury dance one girl attacked Maybelle, whom she accused of trying to steal her sweetheart from her.

In her letters to McDougall, Maybelle showed that she was not averse to stirring her admirers to jealousy, for she told the young man she professed to love of her many meetings and rides with other men.

POWERFUL BLOW

District Attorney Foley said today that the jealous woman theory was being thoroughly investigated but added that Medical Examiner Leary, when asked about it, had frowned upon it.

"Dr. Leary believes, as a result of tests he has made, that the more serious wounds on the victim's head were put there while she was lying face down on the ground," Foley said. "And he believes that they were caused by an exceptionally powerful and terrible swing of the death weapon.

"This report by the medical examiner, besides tending to discount the jealous woman theory, also seems to show that a left-handed man did not do the killing. If it is true, as Dr. Leary surmises, that the wounds were dealt while Maybelle Matheson was face down, of course that means that a right-handed man swung the cudgel."

MIDDLE-AGE SUSPECT

The foreigner who took Maybelle riding on several occasions is still the subject of intensive search by the police. Information given the investigators about his name, address and automobile registration number proved, upon inquiry, to be inaccurate, but from his description the authorities still hope to locate him.

He is not a youth, as at first reported to the police, but a middle-aged man and possibly the same "elderly admirer" referred to by a girl chum of Maybelle's, by some of her fellow employes at the knitting mill and one or two others.

Roughly his description checks up with that of the man seen near the murder scene by two Baker street high school boys and later on a street car by Conductor Arthur Grant.

Mrs. Angus MacRitchie, the dead girl's aunt, disclosed that she and her husband differ as to the motive for the murder. Mrs. MacRitchie believes a jealous admirer killed Maybelle while in a furious rage. Her husband, she said, believes a maniac committed the brutal crime.

"Maybelle did not have fifty sweethearts, as has been said," declared Mrs. MacRitchie. "I want the public to know that those fifty names found in her room were the names, chiefly, of former Nova Scotia boys who had come to Boston and whose presence here Maybelle had learned of through social affairs.

"It was a natural thing for her

Maybelle Mourns Misfortune

(Copyright, 1927, by the Boston Evening American.)

"I am an unfortunate kid. I feel as if I were all alone."

In this vein Maybelle Matheson, 19-year-old victim of the murder fiend in the Baker street tragedy at West Roxbury, sometimes wrote to her sweetheart, Bernard McDougall.

She loved him; repeatedly in her letters she told him. And she longed always for him when he was away. More of her letters follow:

"October 29, 1926.

"My dearest B——:

"Well, Honey, I am sorry to tell you I am writing this in bed laid up since yesterday with a very bad case of tonsilitis. The doctor ordered me to stay in bed a whole week. If you could only come out and see me the time would fly, but as I am all alone I feel the time so long. I hope it will only be a week. If it is any longer Bernie surely will have to come to Dedham.

Tomorrow is my pay day and I won't be able to get my envelope and I am down to 20 cents. My uncle went down to see Nicholson tonight. He is sick, too. Don't know what the matter is with him. I haven't seen him for ages. I haven't seen Annie McL. for ages.

Are you working, now? That sure was tough to be down to one cent. I am down to 20 cents now and have no partner as you had. I have my envelope coming tomorrow. My board and the doctor will get all that, though. The doctor said my throat was the worst he had even seen.

Honey, you don't realize how much I wish you could walk in right now. You know I love you more than ever. I didn't think it could be possible, but lying here in bed I think of you a lot and wonder if you are really coming to Boston. Maybe my uncle would board you. He has room for another boarder.

I was down to 67 Saturday night. Had a fair time as usual. I went with an old friend of mine I came home with a couple of girls. I haven't seen him since. I am an unfortunate kid. Honey, I only wish you or some one of my family were here. I feel as if I were all alone. I think you better come to Boston. I'd be the happiest kid in Massachsetts if you come now. I really shouldn't write so much as my arm is getting awfully tired. I had planned on going to a Hallowe'en party tonight but can't go. Hope you will excuse my terrible writing as I am in bed.

Well, dearest, I guess that's all I can write you now. I hope you will write me real soon. Have you taken any pictures of yourself since you left. I am having some taken as soon as I get on my feet again. I hope it will be soon. Be a good old sweetheart. I am as ever, your own Honey, (Signed) Mabel.

P. S.—Just had a nurse in to see me since I finished. She told me all I could have to eat was orange juice and milk for a week. Guess I'll pass out on that. Ha. Ha.

Love, M——.

This missive, dated Nov. 15, 1926, was addressed to Bernie MacDougall at Highlands Park, Mich:

My Dear Honey:

"Gee! It seems a long while since I've written you—but I always manage to write at least one letter a week. I must say you are a good Kid too for you have written me nearly every week since you left.

"Dearest you must excuse my terrible writing as my pen is terrible. Guess I must invest in a new one writing letters.

"How is work coming? I am working every day. Gee, I am afraid I might be laid off any day. There have been 25 girls laid off where I am. I do hope I don't get through.

"I am almost broke. Was in town last week. I got a coat and a hat and, oh! my coat is a peach—forty-five bucks.

"Say old sweetheart! Everytime I think of that terrible snappy letter you wrote me, I feel kind of sore. If I ever wrote you a letter so nasty you wouldn't have answered it—but I guess I love you Honey. If I didn't I surely wouldn't bother writing you. Hope you still love me as you did.

"You say the pimples are still with you but I think you will get rid of them as you get older. Oh never mind. You will get rid of all the pimples when you go East next Summer—huh?

"Have I told you my uncle got a new car—an Oldsmobile—and it is great. He is selling the flivver. Do you want to buy it? Only $35—ahum! Maybe you are like me—I couldn't buy a paper this morning. Ha.

"I haven't been to church for a couple of Sundays. My chum wanted me to go to church with her last Sunday. She is Catholic. I may go with her sometime just to see what it is like. Gee! I may be going there with you before so many, many years—what say?

"I had a terrible pain in my heart all day and wonder why. I hope I get a letter from you tomorrow and that will fix it all up. I mean all that old dear—don't think I am fooling.

"I haven't been to a dance for a long time. I never saw those guys I met when with you since. I really don't believe I'd know them now. Oh, yes! I'd know Mackay on account of his chin—ha! ha!

"Your last letter was a peach. Why don't you always write letters like that?

"Well, honey, I guess I must close. I found it terrible hard to write tonight. There is a gang in and all playing cards. What a racket they are making—all boys—and my uncle makes the most noise.

"Please don't pay any attention to some things I tell you for sometimes I am tormented so about you, I feel real cross—huh? Don't forget to write.

I am always,
Your little sweetheart, Mabel.
(Twenty crosses devoting kisses.)
If they were only real—oh, kiddo!

Another Instalment Will Be Published Tomorrow.

SUZANNE IN 'LOVE SET'

REPORTED ENGAGED TO BALDWIN
"I'll give up tennis for love if necessary," Miss Lenglen said just before the rumors of her engagement to the grandson of "Lucky" Baldwin of California became rife in Havana. Neither will confirm the story, but Baldwin has been seen often in her company.

LENGLEN MAY QUIT TENNIS FOR HUSBAND

Havana, Jan. 26 (A.P.) — Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen, French tennis star, remarked today that she would "give up tennis for love—if necessary" and this was immediately followed by rumors that she and Baldwin Baldwin of California had become engaged.

Neither would confirm this report, but Mr. Baldwin came here recently and has often been in Suzanne's company.

Some of the members of the tennis contingent here for exhibitions have told friends that they were expecting to offer congratulations to the French girl "any time," but as Mlle. Lenglen has often before been reported engaged, this may merely have reference to future possibilities.

The group which has invaded Cuba for exhibition games includes also Miss Mary K. Browne, Harvey Snodgrass, Paul Feret, and Howard Kinsey. Vincent Richards, who is ill, remained behind in Miami.

Los Angeles, Jan. 26 (A.P.)—Baldwin Baldwin of California, whom Havana rumors have engaged to Suzanne Lenglen, French tennis star, is married and has twin daughters. He is a grandson of E. J. (Lucky) Baldwin, multi-millionaire turfman, and makes his home at Santa Anita, Cal., where his mother, Mrs. Anita Baldwin, also has an estate.

DOANE ALIMONY SUIT DELAYED FOR A WEEK

Mrs. Maude A. Doane, with her lawyers and an array of women witnesses, appeared in Brookline Probate Court today ready for hearing on her suit for alimony and counsel fees against George B. Doane, director in several Boston Banks.

Hearing went over to next Wednesday when Judge Arthur W. Dolan said he preferred to have Judge Joseph McCoole hear the case because of his familiarity with it. The latter justice will preside when the case comes up at Dedham then.

HIS INCOME LARGE.

Atorneys John M. Morrison and John J. Heffernan, acting for Mrs. Doane, expressed approval of the action. They make the claim Mrs. Doane has received only $30 since she and her husband separated last March, although the court ordered she be paid $50 a week. Mr. Doane's income is in the vicinity of $15,000, Attorney Morrison claimed.

Early this month Mrs. Doane filed suit for divorce, alleging misconduct. She filed another suit against Mrs. Florence M. Densmore of Brookline charging alienation of Doane's affections.

NO GOLD DIGGER.

Mrs. Densmore was in court today with her husband, G. Ellis Densmore, boyhood friend of Doane. The Densmores were estranged, but are reunited.

"I am no gold digger but I know my rights and intend to fight for them," said Mrs. Doane, referring to her suit for alimony.

She sat in the midst of the group of women friends in court today, prettily attired in a green dress with hat to match, and a fur coat. She engaged in an earnest conference with her counsel.

WORK ON ARGENTINE WARSHIPS COMMENDED

The work on the Argentine battleships Rivadavia and Moreno at the Fore River shipyards by the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation has been under fire of critics of the government and certain Argentine newspapers and the ministry of the navy has issued a statement refuting charges that the results sought in these renovations were not obtained.

An efficiency unequalled in the history of the Argentine navy was obtained since the changes made at Quincy on the warships' 15-inch guns, the navy statement declares. A congressional committee supervised the tests of the Argentine craft.

THIRD FIRE IN HOME IN YEAR

For the second time in ten days and the third in a year fire swept the home of Samuel W. Humphrey at No. 17 High street, Needham, today, causing damage estimated at more than $7,000. The cause is yet undetermined, although the previous fires were caused by defective flues.

An 18-year-old son was awakened about 1 o'clock by the smoke that was suffocating him. He aroused his parents, who grabbed what little clothing they could and fled. A telephone call from neighbors brought the department.

Immediately upon arriving on the scene Chief Robert E. Quinlan ordered a second alarm.

Before the blaze was extinguished it had swept the rear portion of the house and part of the roof.

The fire of ten days ago caused $1,200 damage.

SICK IN BATTLE
General Braddock was ambushed near Fort Duquesne on July 9, 1755. Washington, ill, tried to rally the British soldiers.

UNSCATHED
Washington had two horses shot from under him. He was unwounded, though four bullet holes were in his coat.

LEADER KILLED
General Braddock was carried, mortally wounded, from the field. He died two days later, heart-broken over his defeat.

COMMENDED

HUNT CAVE MEN IN E. BOSTON

With more men on the various trails, East Boston police today began a determined hunt for the "huggers" who have been annoying women in the district.

Police are convinced there is more than one "hugger" amusing himself in his own quaint way, for many complaints have been received from different sections, carrying descriptions that differ greatly.

Helen Reilly, 18, of Saratoga street, East Boston, was seized by a "hugger" near the Saratoga street railroad bridge, but wrenched free and fled home, a block away.

Another victim is Mrs. Edwin J. March, wife of a well known druggist, who also lives in Saratoga street.

CHARGES GOULD GARBLED STORY

Washington, Jan. 26 (A.P.).—Charges that Senator Gould, Republican, Maine, had given two different versions of the $100,000 campaign contribution to the Conservative party of New Brunswick, Canada, in connection with a railroad contract, were made today before the Senate Elections Committee by Senator Walsh, Democrat, Montana, whose resolution started the Gould investigation.

He charged that in sworn testimony before Justice McKeown in New Brunswick, Gould said he had agreed to pay the $100,000 in the fall of 1911, two or three months before the contract was signed providing for the construction of the St. Johns & Quebec railroad

SLAYER TRIED IN 5 HOURS

Saco, Me., Jan. 26 (A.P.)—Jersey justice got a jolt for speed in the trial, conviction and sentence of Ernest C. Welsh of Kittery for killing Andrew Langdon of Portsmouth, N. H., December 19 last.

Five hours elapsed between the time the state opened its case and sentence, pronounced by Justice William R. Pattangall of from three to six years in State Prison.

During the five hours several recesses were granted reducing the actual time to less than four hours. Before the week end Welsh will wear a prison suit.

Broken Chain Halts Ladder Eight on Summer Street

There wasn't much of a blaze at No. 128 Bedford street today when engines responded to the alarm, but the aftermath furnished excitement.

Ladder 8 arrived with the other apparatus, and when a cellar fire had been squelched in premises occupied by the Buildings Care Company, started homeward.

A skid-chain drifted into the running-gear and the powerful fire-fighting machine stopped short in the middle of Summer street near South and High streets.

What room the engine didn't take up, the throngs of curious spectators did, tying up traffic. After copious use of hammers, picks and crow-bars the chain was removed, and freedom reigned again.

STRIKE TIES UP N. H. MILL

Tilton, N. H., Jan. 26.—One hundred and fifty men and women, practically the entire force employed at the Elm Mills Company of this town, went out on strike today after State Senator O. G. Morrison, millionaire owner of the mills, refused to discharge John Perthel, as demanded by the members of the Union Textile Workers Local No. 1186.

According to the members of the union, Perthel who was a member of the union has refused for six months to pay dues and the union leaders took the matter up with Owner Morrison.

Wales Tours Slums and Almost Sees Regular Show

London, Jan. 26 (A.P.).—For four hours last night the Prince of Wales toured some of the poorest districts of the city, calling at charitable institutions and philanthropic clubs.

At one of the clubs, the officials had a few anxious seconds through the threatened collapse of a screen behind which several girls were disrobing after a Greek dance, which the prince had applauded enthusiastically.

The last visit was to a shelter for down and outers where street wanderers are provided with free beds. Some men, already abed, were displeased over the commotion caused by Wales' entry, but when one exclaimed, "Blime, it's Teddy," the prince was quickly recognized to keep a sort of record of boys and girls from home whom she had met or might meet at some dance in the near future. Some of these boys she met at the Scotch Presbyterian Church.

"Most all of us can sit down and write over 100 names of men and women we know, and a girl just recently come from a distant home is more apt to keep a list of friends than one who has lived here for a long time.

"If the authorities investigate they will find that many of these so-called sweethearts are simply former school chums of Maybelle.

"Then again it has been said that she and Alex Nicholson were once engaged. That is not true. Her letters to Bernard MacDougall may show that she thought Nicholson cared a lot, but personally I don't think he was over-much interested in Maybelle.

"Nicholson and my husband have always been close friends and that is why he came to visit us. Maybelle was here with us, of course, and he was naturally thrown into friendship with her and doubtless asked her out a few times. There was never any thought of marriage between them.

"I don't think Maybelle and Bernard had planned definitely for their marriage, but it is possible that they would have made plans in the near future. He is a good boy.

"We have made every effort to find out with whom Maybelle was planning to go to a dance the night she was killed, but we have been unable to learn who it was. We have asked all her friends without any result and we are today as much in the dark as ever.

"At the request of the police I took the liberty of reading the last letter that Maybelle received from her mother but, of course, there was nothing in it that can help the investigation. Her mother told her to be sure to come home on her vacation this Summer because all the family wanted to see her very much."

FUNERAL SERVICE

With only a few relatives of the murder victim present, funeral services were conducted today at Waterman's Chapel in Roxbury. The Rev. Hector Ferguson of the Scotch Presbyterian Church, Warren avenue and Brookline street, officiated. The body will be taken to Nova Scotia on the 7 o'clock train from the North Station this evening.

A new "admirer" of Maybelle's was brought into the investigation by Alexander Clough, proprietor of the variety store that the girl often stopped at on her way to and from work.

Clough told of a tall, light-complexioned youth who went into the store with her on the Sunday night preceding the murder.

"It wasn't Nicholson or MacDougall," said Clough. "I do not think it is any one of the men whose pictures or descriptions have been printed in the newspapers. He wore light-colored clothes and a soft hat and was smooth-shaven.

Didn't Know Friend Was Drunk, Says Patrolman

"And what were you doing at this house?" Police Chief Burke of Newton asked Patrolman John E. Green in prosecuting a charge of drunkenness, driving while under the influence of liquor and illegal transportation, against Joseph F. Ryan of River street, Waltham, in Newton District Court today.

"I was sent there by Sergeant Mahoney," replied the patrolman, "looking up the case."

Patrolman Green, who was in the automobile with Ryan as they left the driveway of the house in question, declared he saw no signs of drunkenness on Ryan and did not see the bottle of liquor claimed to have been found in the machine, until it was in the hands of Sergeant Veduccio and Patrolman Gaquin, who arrested Ryan.

Ryan was found not guilty on the drunk charge and the charge of illegal transportation was placed on file. On the charge of driving while under the influence he was fined $100 and appealed.

6 IN PERIL ON 2 BARGES IN GALE

and tow of three ran into trouble off Pamet River, where like the Jupiter's case, the stern barge broke away, and wallowing in the giant seas and gale drifted off toward the sound. Three or more men are believed aboard her also.

Without power and helpless save for the bits of canvas rolled against the stubby masts, the Solitaire, with a few hundred feet of broken tow line dragging from her ice-encrusted bow, turned before the gale and with giant seas smashing at her stern, swept toward the dangerous sands of Monomoy Point.

For a time the Jupiter and her remaining charges, wallowing in the heavy seas, headed into the blast, the tug's whistle crying hoarsely its signals of distress. On the bow of the helpless Solitaire, growing smaller and smaller as the distance increased, the handful of men worked frantically to drop anchor. The intense cold and ice appeared to hamper their efforts.

This tragic drama of a Winter sea, made more menacing by a clear sky, was witnessed from the shore by the coast guardsmen and residents, who, because of the big seas, were unable to launch a boat and go to the assistance of the doomed craft.

For a time the Jupiter, the seas breaking over her bow and those of the barges Brooklyn and Luson, headed into the gale.

Then, as if to make a desperate attempt to save the drifting Solitaire, the Jupiter turned and with her tows dragging scurried off in the direction that the Solitaire had taken.

Hampered by the heavily laden barges, the tug made little headway. At times the tug's propeller was clear out of water as she battled her way over the giant seas. The spray smashed against the pilot house and along deck, freezing almost as soon as it fell.

The Solitaire yawed badly as the man at the wheel tried to keep the craft headed before the blast. At one time, the wind veered enough so that the Solitaire appeared to be heading straight for the tip of Monomoy point. But the craft turned again and shot out into Nantucket sound.

FLIERS CARRY AID TO MEN MAROONED IN LAKE ICE

Michigan City, Ind., Jan. 26 (A.P.).—At the mercy of winds and waves on Lake Michigan, three fishermen marooned on the tiny tug Imperial as she lay in the grip of a huge drifting ice field, ten miles off Michigan City, turned to the skies today for succor.

The sheet of ice holding the tug fast was surrounded by open water and beyond that ice packed again, making the men dependent on airplanes for food and other supplies.

URGE BILL FAVORING POLICE AND FIREMEN

Police and firemen from Haverhill, Gloucester, Medford and Cambridge today urged the legislative committee on labor and industries to report a bill allowing cities and towns to compensate firemen and policemen incapacitated from service by reasons of injury or illness in the performance of duty. It was pointed out the communities now have no legal right to pay salaries for loss of time in such cases.

powerful Deity of Light and the Sun, with followers far outnumbering those of Jehovah.

No false god, Mithras or any other, could survive without permission of the real God, of course. But at one time it looked as though Mithras, seated on his bull, with the morning and evening stars beside him, would rule all Europe.

Fortunately St. Paul could make no headway with Christianity in Asia, so he came to Europe to his work, and wiping out Mithraism was part of it.

Mithras, the great god of light, "friend of man," is as dead now as the brave old Gauls that built his temple, or the bull upon which he sat, plunging his knife into it.

NO LOW descending sun ever finds Mussolini winding up an idle day. Among other things the Italian dictator is Italy's Air Minister. Our "take it easy" government will please note that Mussolini expects, by Spring, to have a gigantic air fleet, powerful enough to paralyze any enemy that should start a war.

NO VICTORY can be won by soldiers on the ground. But if war should start, and a hundred airplanes dropping TNT were immediately despatched to destroy big cities in an enemy country, though it had a million armed men, that country might be begging for peace before nightfall.

Those responsible for the welfare and safety of American cities please think it over.

IF NORTH and South America cannot set before the rest of the world the example of peace and common sense, something is wrong with North or South America. This year the Latin Republics will spend $100,000,000 developing railroads, and most of the money will be borrowed in the United States. Chile is negotiating a $40,000,000 loan in New York to electrify the Chilean State railways. Apparently those South American Republics have public officials sufficiently honest and competent to manage State railways.

THE FINANCING of desirable industrial enterprises in South America by United States banks is a useful investment for American money, better than lending money to Europe to keep up fighting equipment.

SWEDISH ENGINEERS and financiers undertake to build Turkish railroads for Kemal Pasha and exploit Turkey's forests and coal fields.

The Swedish syndicate "will probably turn to New York for a loan." That also will be money well lent. Building railroads and industry means fighting poverty, and fighting poverty means fighting war.

ONE BILLION dollars will be spent on new golf courses and clubhouses this year, including the cost of 1,000 new golf clubs starting and maintenance of old clubs. If the nation could build a thousand new flying machines, one for each new golf club, to protect the links and placid gentlemen playing on them, it would be a good thing.

INCREASED tension between the Vatican and Mussolini's government is shown by the Pope's order disbanding Catholic Boy Scout organizations in Italian cities of less than 20,000 population. Mussolini had announced his intention to discourage Catholic boy scout competition with his Fascist boy scouts. The Pope's letter shows that the Catholic scouts were disbanded because of Mussolini's threat. The Pope's letter says: "We wish to spare them (the Fascist government) the ungrateful task of dissolving so many sections of good and peaceful young explorers in which the population of small centres took so much pride."

The Pope's letter quotes King David's words to God: "If we must die, let it be by your hand rather than by the hand of men."

CODEX PROVES TO BE FAKE

Bari, Italy, Jan. 26 (I.N.S.)—The purported discovery at Cerignola recently of a supposed Greek codex signed by Joseph of Jerusalem, which caused a stir in scholastic circles, is now alleged to be just another hoax.

The codex, believed by many English and American scholars to have been authentic, was purported to bear the signature of Joseph Flavius, who was born 37 years after Christ, dealt with the life of Christ and the destruction of Jerusalem by the Romans.

Gino Gordella now charges that the purported codex was fabricated by Louis Moccia on his suggestion. Gordella said he conceived of the story of finding the codex to advertise a novel by Moccia, which was supposed to have been based on the codex.

Henry Ford has been reported as striving to buy the codex, believing it to be the "Fifth Gospel."

Washington, Jan. 26 (A.P.).—Impeachment of Federal Judge Frank Cooper of the northern New York district, was demanded today in a resolution by Representative Celler, Democrat, New York.

KISSING THRILLS SHORTEN LIFE, DOCTORS DECLARE

San Francisco, Jan. 26.—The short cut to the cemetery is via the osculatory route. The thrill of a kiss in the dark is the accelerator that propels mortals to an early grave. This grave dictum comes from erudite members of the medical profession after considerable research.

A timely warning has been issued, an admonition that concludes with the dread pronouncement that every time you "sling a smack" your heart consumes reserve energy and for every kiss and every thrill three minutes are lost from your life.

San Francisco doctors estimate that the average person's heart beats only 1,545,264,000 times in a lifetime. Excitement makes the heart beat faster. When one is in the throes of the osculatory rite the heart pumps from its normal 70 to an abnormal 90, and since it requires ten minutes for the heart to recover its normalcy, obviously it has beat 200 extra times in that period. In other words, three minutes of life have been lost.

THINK MISSING FIANCEE OF SLAYER IS IN HUB

The missing fiance of William N. Coffey, bigamist and confessed slayer of his second wife, now in custody in Wilwaukee, Wis., is believed by Milwaukee police to be living in Boston.

Dispatches state that Coffeyy ardently wooed a girl at Maquoketa, Ia., during his residence there in 1919-1920, and that the girl has not been seen since their disapparance about that time. It was learned that after the girl's disappearance, letters purporting to have come from her were received from Boston, and that one letter intimated that she had a child, but had not been married to Coffey.

GREET PRINCE IN WORCESTER

Worcester, Jan. 26.—All Worcester turned out to welcome Prince William of Sweden today, making his second visit to the Heart of the Commonwealth in 20 years. As the royal big-game hunter who walked right into the hearts of the American people, stepped off the train from Springfield, he was met by a big delegation of distinguished Worcester citizens.

The Prince was escorted to the Bancroft Hotel where a short reception followed. From the Bancroft he went to City Hall to pay his respect to Mayor Michael J. O'Hara and other members of the city government. From the hall the Prince and his escort returned to the Bancroft where they prepared for an inspection tour of the city.

This trip covered much of the ground traversed by his brother, Crown Prince Gustavus Adolphus during his visit here last June.

Tonight Prince William will give a lecture on his travels and big game hunting in Mechanics Hall. From Worcester the Prince will return to Boston.

ZERO WEATHER FOR BOSTON

Toronto, Jan. 26 (A. P.)—With a temperature of 56 below zero, Horne Payne, northern Ontario village, today held the record for the coldest spot in the Dominion. White River, usually the coldest spot, had a temperature of 54. West Tree was third with the thermometer at 53 below. In Southern Ontario temperatures down to 30 below also were reported.

below mark on January 28, 1924 and the 6 below mark of two days previously to shoot at.

But it will go deep indeed to equal January 24, 1882, when it was 13 degrees below zero—the coldest day in January in 52 years.

It wasn't so bad just after midnight today. The temperature then was just 32. Twelve hours later, however, the mercury had slumped 22 degrees to 8 above, and was still shrinking in the tube.

But, if it will comfort in the fact that misery loves company—it was 16 below at Greenville, Me., 10 below at Burlington, Vt., and 32 below at Sault Ste. Marie, Wis.

The cold swept down in a broad band from over Lake Superior, congealing everything in its rapid movement Eastward.

There is a band of warmer weather back of the frigid belt, and unless side-tracked, the comparative warmth will hit Boston tomorrow night.

As the mercury dropped, New England cities and towns began to report their discomfort, Barre, Vt., mentioning 20 below zero, Pittsfield 2 above, Lynn 10 above and St. Albans, Vt., 20 below.

In Portland, Me., an 8-degree drop gave a reading of zero at noon, with 10 to 15 degrees below predicted for tonight.

Keene, N. H. congealed with a slightly sub-zero temperature, while Lawrence and Brockton had temperatures of 9 above.

Temperature 20 to 30 Below in Northern New York

Malone, N. Y., Jan. 26 (A.P.).—Temperatures ranging from 20 to 30 below zero were reported in Malone and surrounding towns today.

Local thermometers registered 20 degrees below zero, while at Twin Bridges, a few miles south of here, the mercury went down to 30. At Owl's Head a temperature of 26 below was reported. Twenty below was the reading at Saranac Lake.

Watertown, N. Y., Jan. 26 (A.P.).—Today is the coldest of the season here—15 degrees below zero.

Traffic was paralyzed in this section. Trains were running far behind time as chill blasts made it difficult to steam locomotives.

There was no warning of the approaching cold wave. Thermometers registered a drop of 47 degrees from early yesterday afternoon to this morning.

39 Degrees Below Zero Reported in Minnesota

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 26 (A.P.).—Biting cold tightened its grip on the Northwest today, with the brunt of the wave striking Minnesota, Brainerd reported 39 below.

Temperatures in other parts of the state ranged up to 12 below at Mankato, the warmest spot in the state. The Twin Cities had 21 below.

MADDEN SEES BIG TAX CUT

Washington, Jan. 26 (A.P.).—A tax reduction at the next session of Congress was predicted today by Chairman Madden of the House Appropriations Committee after a talk with President Coolidge.

He said he could not yet predict the form of the revision, but foresaw an aggregate reduction of $350,000,000 to $400,000,000.

BACK BAY MAN DRINKS POISON; MYSTERY IN CASE

While walking in Agassiz road, Back Bay, today, Anthony Lucas, thirty-three, of Ivy street, drank the contents of a bottle of disinfectant. He was taken to City Hospital, where his name was placed on the danger list. No one could be found who could give a reason for Lucas action.

EARS AND HANDS FROZEN AT FIRE

Several firemen suffered from frozen ears and hands, another narrowly escaped serious injury when his clothes were burned, and twelve workmen were driven from their benches by flames at a general alarm fire in one of the buildings of the Brunsene Manufacturing Company on Stanley avenue, Watertown, today.

So threatening were the flames that Chief John J. O'Hearn of Watertown summoned help from Newton. Hoseman Jerome Costello of Engine Company No. 2, Watertown, had both ears frozen. Captain William Kelly of Headquarters Company was fighting the fire at close range when his trousers and coat began to burn. A stream of water directed on the burning garmen quenched the flame.

The fire started in a machine fill with chemicals, used in maki clothes waterproof. Workm manned the factory fire hose un firemen arrived.

BANKER HELPS 'WETS,' CAN'T BE JUROR

A contribution to the Constitutional Liberty League, organized to obtain modification of the Volstead act, effected release from jury duty for George S. Mumford, president of the Atlantic National Bank, in a trial today in Federal District Court.

The banker was drawn on a panel to try 14 members of the crew of the rum-running schooner Van, which is alleged to have landed a huge cargo of liquor two years ago in Portland, Me.

"Is there any member of this jury," queried Judge Morris, presiding, "who is a member of or contributor to any association organized to prosecute violations of the prohibition laws?" No juror answered the question.

"Is there any member of the jury," continued the judge, "a member of or contributor to any association organized to oppose prohibition?"

"Yes," answered Mumford. "I have contributed to the Constitutional Liberty League, opposed to the Volstead Act."

"Mr. Mumford may be excused from serving on this jury," retorted Judge Morris.

APPROVE 5-YEAR AIRPORT LEASE

The Governor's Council today approved extension of the Boston airport lease to the Federal government for five years, namely from 1932 to 1937.

The last Legislature had authorized the department of public works to make an extension for 15 years, with the approval of the governor and council.

As a result of conferences with War Department officials the lease was finally set at the five-year period.

PAGE BROWN TELLS ABOUT COMMUNITY ADVERTISING

Community advertising was the subject of an address by Page Brown of the H. B. Humphrey Company, advertising agents of Boston, at the weekly meeting of the Kendall Square Manufacturers' Association.

Mr. Brown told of the remarkable progress in Atlanta, St. Louis, Baltimore and other cities and communities all over the country which have directed to themselves, through their advertising efforts, new industries, more tourists and consequent increased prosperity.

It was learned there are over 75 municipalities and communities investing from $10,000 to $400,000 annually to assist them in their economic development.

RAY OF HOPE MAKES CHAPLIN "DELIGHTED"

New York, Jan. 26 (I.N.S.).—"Delighted," was the enthusiastic comment today of Charlie Chaplin when he learned the Theatre Owners' Chamber of Commerce had voted him confidence endorsing his films, following rumors that because of the comedian's divorce suit entanglements his pictures might meet with objections.

While Chaplin prepares for a "fight to the finish" in the action brought by Lita Grey Chaplin he is also planning to complete his new picture, "The Circus."

SCHOOLHOUSE BURNED IN THIRD FIRE OF DAY

Walden, Vt., Jan. 26 (A.P.).—A dwelling house, the temporary housing place of the Heights High School pupils since the destruction of the school building by fire January 8, was burned to the ground after two other blazes in the building during the day had been subdued.

Loss is estimated at $2,000. The building was insured for $800.

NORTH CAROLINA MAY BAN EVOLUTION TEACHING, TOO

Raleigh, N. C., Jan. 26 (I. N. S.)—The anti evolution fight broke in the North Carolina legislature today when Rep. D. Scott Poole of Hoke County, introduced his bill to forbid teaching of the evolution theory. The bill is patterned after the Tennessee law which the state supreme court upheld.

CALLS CHURCH LAWS 'A MESS'

Continuation of the commission on repeal of obsolete laws, with broader powers and an appropriation of $5,000 for clerical help, was urged today at a hearing at the State House by Augustus P. Loring, chairman of the commission.

Mr. Loring declared that the laws relating to churches and religious societies are "in a mess." He mentioned the litigation that has taken place in the Christian Science Church.

Two laws, one prohibiting churches from having an income larger than $4,000 a year and the other limiting the property holdings of the Catholic Church in Massachusetts, he characterized as "simply rediculous."

'DRY' PADLOCK LAW SOUGHT

A "padlock" law similar to that of the Federal government was urged for Massachusetts at a hearing today before a committee of the Legislature.

Elijah Adlow, special counsel for Boston, declared the police records show certain buildings raided as many as 25 times.

"Under the present law," said Adlow, "an owner who knowingly permits the sale of liquor on his property can be prosecuted, but the Supreme Court has never sustained a conviction.

"The police commissioner believes the best way to reach this evil is by enjoining the use of such objectionable property for any purpose whatever. Then if the injunction is violated, the owner can be summoned into court and adjudged in contempt."

Y. D. HERO MASCOT GIVEN TO RED CROSS MUSEUM

Washington, Jan. 26 (A.P.).—"Stubby," famous mascot dog of the 102nd Infantry of the 26th Division during the World War, that died here a year ago, is to be placed in the museum of the National Red Cross headquarters here.

The mascot, decorated many times in France, was the property of J. Robert Conroy, now secretary to Representative E. Hart Fenn, of Connecticut. He joined the army at New Haven, attaching himself to recruits drilling in the Yale Bowl, and served throughout the war.

His blanket, made by French women, is weighted down with medals and carries service and wound stripes, the latter being awarded as a result of "Stubby" being struck by a shell splinter. Upon his death "Stubby" was turned over to Smithsonian Institution taxidermists for mounting.

Morse's 75th BIRTHDAY

Marking three-quarters of a century of steady advance by Boston craftsmen in the art of tailoring men's clothes

1927

SEVENTY-FIVE years without a change of name and policy—such in brief is the history of Leopold Morse Company. This has been possible first because "progressiveness" was written into the policy at the start; and second because the founders and their successors have lived up to this forward looking plan of business.

WHAT was correct at Morse's seventy-five years ago is hardly correct today as the sketches below will illustrate. That is not the point. What is correct TODAY counts—and that you will find at Morse's, the largest manufacturing clothiers in New England. And when tomorrow comes—"if it's correct, it will be at Morse's."

Celebrating a notable anniversary in New England's business

Correct at Morse's in 1896

Correct at Morse's in 1907

Correct at Morse's in 1907

These "correct" fashion sketches are reproduced from the original Morse style book.

Were it not for Leopold Morse, Boston would be unknown nationally in the great men's clothing industry. Single-handed, this company has won for the New England make a big place in the sun. Well over 4,000,000 men have worn Morse clothes. Hundreds of progressive men's stores throughout the country rely on this brand of clothing for style leadership and reliable Yankee quality.

Fortunately we need not go into ancient history to show the success that Boston made clothing has won through its one exponent. In the distribution of the coming "Spring line" of suits and topcoats Leopold Morse sales are 61% ahead of last year, though the industry as a whole has enjoyed only average prosperity. New England Council, Chambers of Commerce and other public spirited agencies take notice!

'DADDY' KEPT HIS 'CINDERELLA' COOPED IN ROOM OF IRON BARS

MOTHER OF 'PEACHES' TELLS OF BROWNING'S GAMBOLS

"Peaches" were introduced as evidence in the case today by attorneys for the husband.

While the couple were on their "Cinderella honeymoon" it was testified that Browning had iron bars put on the windows of the bridal suite. It was in this suite that "Peaches" says "Daddy" asked her to parade around the room in negligee.

This testimony was introduced by Mrs. Catherine Mayer, a nurse and friend of the Heenan family.

The love notes were carried into court in a bulging suitcase bearing Browning's initials. Browning kept the suitcase at his elbow as his attorney submitted the missives, one by one, as exhibits in the case.

"Peaches" herself was on the stand for but a short time today during which she admitted changing certain entries in her diary to shield the names of "young men friends" from courtroom publicity.

Her mother, Mrs. Carolyn Heenan, star witness of the session, testified that one day shortly after the marriage Browning threatened "Peaches'" life.

PEACHES' MA

"He got greatly excited and threw himself flat on the bed," said Mrs. Heenan. "When he got up he cried: "I'm going to kill 'Peaches' and then kill myself!"

Mrs. Heenan told of first meeting Browning when 'Peaches' came home with him after a dance. She said Browning gave her a "roll of bills" on the day 'Peaches' got married to 'cover expenses.'

She said that in planning the wedding Browning told one of the men in the wedding party, to bring along a few men "big enough to knock over any officer of the law who showed his badge."

The witness had previously mentioned the proceedings of the childrens' society instituted at about this time against her as an improper guardian, because she had consented to the marriage of 'Peaches' to the much-older realty man.

Life One of Quarrels

Six months after the wedding, Mrs. Heenan said she discovered that her daughter's married life was an unhappy one—a regular series of "screams and quarrels."

When she remonstrated with Browning and 'Peaches' threatened court action, Mrs. Heenan said Browning laughed and boasted:

"The judges buy me lunches, while they freeze the others out. You'll be down in the dirt."

Clad in a blue silk dress and a blue cloche hat, which set off her blonde hair and complexion very becomingly, "Peaches" resumed her story just after court opened.

She wore a little ball watch suspended from her neck on a thin, gold chain.

The courtroom was packed and hundred of curious persons milled about the corridors as the session began.

Browning appeared in the courtroom, without having encountered particular ovations either in the corridors or the streets. He arrived one minute ahead of Justice Seeger.

"Peaches" was cross examined by Atty. John W. Mack, of Browning's counsel, who questioned her about her employment at $15 a week at a New York department store prior to her marriage.

"Daddy" Has "Evil Eye"

She was called upon to identify several newspapers offered in evidence as containing her account of "Why I Left Daddy Browning."

Her voice during the first part of the testimony was in a low, nervous tone. At times she appeared on the verge of tears.

Following the presentation of the newspaper clippings Browning's counsel submitted the first letter thus far offered from the young woman to the elderly realtor.

It was followed by others, so many indeed, on all types and tints of paper, it was apparent Browning had preserved a large collection.

Browning, resting his cheek in his hand, watched letter after letter, containing words of endearment, make its way into the increasing official pile of billets-doux amassing as his evidence.

When Atty. Mack suddenly ended his cross-examination after offering the letters Peaches reached behind the witness stand and clasped her mother's hand for sympathy.

'Peaches' Was 'Good Girl'

Attorney Epstein here took over the witness for re-direct examination.

Epstein told the court he visited "Peaches" in her apartment last night and she told him she never wrote the diary accredited to her in a published story.

Q.—Mrs. Browning, when did you stop making a diary? A.—The day I was married.

Atty. Mack jumped up

"Didn't you identify a diary here yesterday as your diary?" he asked.

"I did," said "Peaches."

"Didn't you tell your attorney you passed off a phoney diary on me," demanded Mack.

"I did not," declared "Peaches" angrily.

"Peaches" admitted that the diary she brought to court yesterday was rewritten by her because she did not want the names of some "young men friends" and some certain incidents mentioned in it to come out in court.

PEACHES—HERSELF

"The writings of this lady will show that she was a woman of the world and knew what marriage meant," here interjected Attorney Mack.

"I was a good girl before my marriage," "Peaches" burst out, and once again seemed on the verge of weeping.

Justice Seeger remarked, in answer to arguments of attorneys on the authenticity of the diary, that it did not seem that the record kept before the marriage had relation to the subsequent events, and temporarily ruled it out.

With this "Peaches" was excused from the stand.

Windows Were Barred

Mrs. Catherine Mayer, a nurse, was then called to the stand. She testified she had known "Peaches" and her mother for five years and went to Cold Spring at Mrs. Heenan's request to pay the Brownings a visit after "Peaches" and "Daddy" were married. She also attended "Peaches" when she suffered acid burns, the witness said.

"I heard Mr. and Mrs. Browning quarreling on their honeymoon at Cold Spring," Mrs. Mayer testified.

"One night, Mrs. Heenan and I were downstairs talking when we heard words upstairs and then a scream. Mrs. Heenan rushed up and brought 'Peaches' from her husband's room."

Browning had iron bars put on the window of the bedroom at Cold Spring, Mrs. Mayer said. The screaming by "Peaches" occurred about 10 o'clock at night, she added.

"Finally I prevailed upon 'Peaches' to go back upstairs to her husband," said Mrs. Mayer. "I told her I thought that was best."

"Peaches'" mother, Mrs. Heenan, was next called. She resembles "Peaches" in feature, although her hair is dark while "Peaches" is a blonde.

Atty. Epstein questioned her.

Q—Where was your daughter born? A—In Columbus, Ohio. She is 16 years old.

Q—Do you recall when you first met Mr. Browning? A—March 15, 1926.

Q—Who introduced you to him? A—My daughter.

Mrs. Heenan said "Peaches" had been to a dance and she was wait-

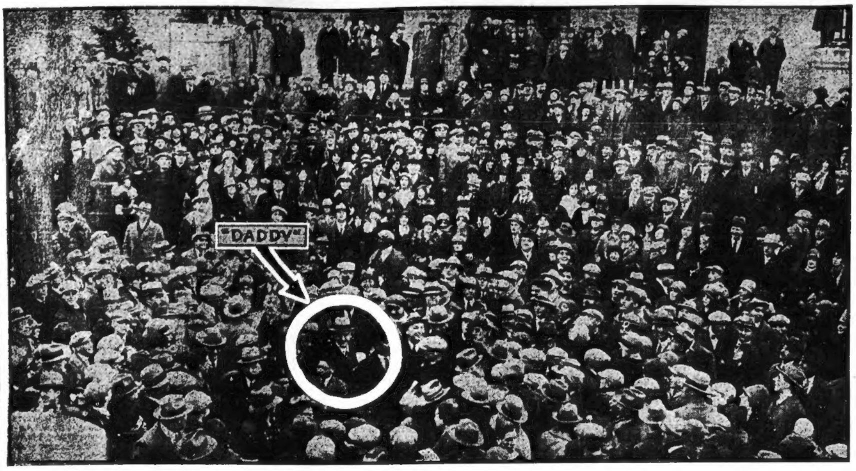
Browning Thrilled ∾ By Vast Crowds ∾ And 'Serpent Woman'



"BUNNY" IN THE SPOTLIGHT AT WHITE PLAINS

Two photographs of Marian Dockerill, which were identified by "Peaches" on the stand. Daddy Browning wanted her to be friends with the woman, who he said headed a cult.

'I WAS GOOD GIRL WHEN I WAS MARRIED,' CRIES 'PEACHES'

By MARGERY REX

White Plains, N. Y., Jan. 26.—"Peaches" Browning, whose attire and habits at breakfast "Daddy" once attempted to dictate, took the stand today on a practically empty stomach.

"Everyone was so dear and lovely to me, and I felt so grateful when I read the papers that I couldn't eat any breakfast. Just a sip of strong coffee."

Like a young actress, beautiful and proud in the flush of a first success, "Peaches" walked to the stand today with the slow, insidious tread of a smart modiste's mannequin.

"Peaches" wears the same little blue hat and gown she has worn since the trial began. She evidently has no desire to display her dress repertoire.

Brinkley Girl

Nell Brinkley, across the courtroom, is sketching pretty Peaches. If anyone had told little Frances Heenan a few years ago that this famous artist would draw her picture, that she could be a Brinkley girl for a day or two, she would have been the envy of all her young friends. Too bad for Peaches the occasion is not a pleasanter one.

"Daddy," with a big portfolio in his lap, is fussing oer his papers. The big rent man of Sherman Square looks as if he were examining leases. "Daddy" doesn't put trick clauses in his apartment-house leases. He reserves his practical joking for private life and his 15-year-old bride.

"Peaches" for a time may have put up patiently with "Daddy's" collapsible tea spoons and rubber eggs. But tenants would not take kindly to collapsible staircases, plaster falling from the ceiling, exploding electric bulbs and door bells that give a nice electric shock to the hand that rings them.

Nor would "Daddy" approve of occupants of his expensive flats keeping geese on the premises or setting alarms to ring in the wee, small hours of the night.

DADDY BROWNING

Re-writes Diary

"Peaches" admits this morning that she has rewritten her diary, leaving out names of young men friends. One of these youths, Joseph Morris, gave "Peaches" the notion, she says.

"I was a good girl when I was married," Peaches cries when John E. Mack, counsel of Browning charges that Peaches was a "woman of the world" before her marriage and that she may have destroyed evidence to this effect in the old diary.

Justice Seeger rules that the contents, whatever they are, of the diary do not relate to this case.

Is "Daddy" trying to trim "Peaches'" sable coat with a few scarlet letters? Not a good sport, "Daddy." His face is blazing red. He is just "ready to fly."

Mother on the stand.

"Ma" Heenan.

"Daddy's" alleged enemy.

"Daddy" takes one look at "Ma" in the witness chair and closes his eyes as one about to swoon.

Don't pretend you're being lashed to the mast. Don't pretend you know "Ma," that no mother could suffer as a loving landlord could?

His scornful looking lips seemed to say:

Ma looks rather young for the mother of a great big girl. She seems to once have been pretty. A rather sad suspicious expression overcasts her face today. We seem to remember having seen that look there before—just after "Peaches" was married.

Mrs. Heenan doesn't boast "Peaches'" Harvard accent, however.

In the foolish month of April, when Nature smiles and frowns, "Peaches" was wed, "Ma" relates.

"April Fool" seems to have been "Daddy's" marriage slogan, as it turned out.

"Ma" Testifies

The lease on the Cold Spring house is now introduced, written on legal foolscap paper.

Mrs. Heenan relates the hasty marriage plan, how Browning wanted to get house, install phones, switch on lights, use his business efficiency on his wedding arrangements. That Browning wanted to contract a hasty and quiet marriage in the out of the way town of Cold Spring to avoid the wrath of the Children's Society is declared by "Ma" Heenan.

"Daddy's" veins in his rosy forehead seem ready to burst. Mrs. Heenan tells again of the Browning penchant for nudity which offended Peaches. Daddy's beady black eyes seem to secrete a wicked pleasure at this reminiscence.

"Ma" is dishing Daddy good and plenty. He shakes his head in amused denial after she describes an occasion on which she said:

"Oh, Daddy, why can't you be happy?"

The ruddy "Daddy" is not being rubbed to sleep by this testimony, slapped to sleep is more exact.

"Oh, Daddy, why can't you be happy?"

"Ma" is clearing her throat for the cross-examination.

"They had a very slight argument in the living room," "Ma" relates of the marital quarrels.

Peaches used to go to a swimming pool in a bathing suit, but the "darling daughter" didn't go near the water. The court laughed at John E. Mack's reference to the hickory of limb jingle.

"I'm drunk, mother," Browning is alleged to have said to Mrs. Heenan and every one laughs heartily, including "Daddy" himself, and that was just before the battle, mother.

CATHOLIC CHURCH MAY TAKE NOTED HERETIC BACK

Rome, Jan. 26 (A.P.).—Authorship of a book on Martin Luther, Il Tevere says, has paved the way for the re-entrance into the Catholic Church of Prof. Ernesto Buonaiuti, famous Catholic theologian, who was excommunicated in 1921 for heretical teachings. He is a professor of the history of religions at the University of Rome.

The newspaper declares Cardinal Gasparri, papal secretary of state, formerly a friend of Prof. Buonaiuti, decided to facilitate his re-entrance into the church because his book contains a perfect exposition of the Holy See's attitude toward Luther.

'PEACHES' ROOM BARRED BY BROWNING

ing up for her when she came home with Browning. Browning impressed her as a 'very fine gentleman" on that occasion, said Mrs. Heenan.

Q—When your daughter went out on other occasions did your daughter always tell you where she was going? A—She did.

Browning usually brought "Peaches" home about midnight, she said.

One night Browning told her he had "serious intentions" regarding "Peaches," said Mrs. Heenan. On that occasion he showed her numerous letters written by girls who wanted to marry him, she said.

Mrs. Heenan testified that the day before "Peaches" married "Daddy" she was summoned to the office of Francis G. Dale, in Browning's office. Browning was there.

"Mr. Browning said he and 'Peaches' were going to run up to Cold Spring and get married. He asked if I could go along. I said yes I could," testified Mrs. Heenan.

"Mr. Browning put a roll of bills in my hand and said I would need it for expenses."

Q.—You knew Browning had proposed to her? A.—Yes.

Witness said she went to Cold Spring and leased a house. She was accompanied by Mr. Dale. Shortly after the marriage, Mrs. Heenan said, her daughter and Browning quarreled and she knew her daughter wasn't happy.

"I heard Browning say to her one night: 'You're no good—you ran around with other men,'" testified the mother.

Mrs. Heenan said one night shortly after the marriage her daughter screamed.

"I rushed upstairs to her," Mrs. Heenan said. "She was in her nightgown. 'Mamma,' she said, 'he wants me to run around the room without clothes on!' I took her to my room."

Q.—How was Browning dressed? A.—He was fully clothed.

On another occasion she said Browning said to her daughter in her presence:

"If you go into court with me no judge in the country will believe you. I will drag your name into the mire like I did the first Mrs. Browning."

Q.—Who gave your daughter the name "Peaches"? A.—Mr. Browning.

Mrs. Heenan said on September 3, 1926, Browning phoned her at her apartment and asked her to come to Kew Gardens Inn, that "something is the matter with 'Peaches.'"

Made Death Threat

When she got there Mrs. Heenan said she found her daughter in a very nervous state and that she noticed her knee was badly skinned.

Browning told her "Peaches" was having "spells," she testified.

Mrs. Heenan decided to stay at Kew Gardens.

Soon "Dorothy Sunshine" Browning, ten-year-old adopted daughter of the millionaire, came there for a visit. When Dorothy came, Browning told "Peaches" she better share a room with her mother, Mrs. Heenan said.

"One day Mr. Browning got greatly excited and fell flat on the bed," declared the witness. "When he got up he shouted, " 'Peaches,' I'm going to kill you and kill myself."

Under cross-examination Mrs. Heenan was thus questioned in regard to the threat incident:

Q.—Was Mr. Browning intoxicated? A.—He said he was.

Q.—Was he? A.—I don't know.

Q.—How old are you, Mrs. Heenan? A.—Do I have to tell my age?

Q.—Have you any hesitancy? A.—No. I am 43 years old.

Q.—Haven't you, as a nurse, seen many drunken men. A.—Yes, many.

Q.—Was Mr. Browning drunk? A.—A little bit, I guess.

Snaps at Attorney

Atty. Mack's tone of voice here caused Mrs. Heenan to snap back at him.

"This is no laughing matter to me, Mr. Mack," she said, and then appealed to the court for a change in the tone of the questions.

Justice Seeger, presiding, leaned over the bench, with his chin resting in his hand.

"Well," he said, slowly, "I'm not going to control the tone of the voice of the counsel here. All lawyers, it seems to me, talk in their own way. Some talk low, some talk high, some talk in a jocular manner, or others in an angry manner.

"I'd rather have the tone jocular—even—than angry. The questioning may proceed."

'SVENGALI ORBS' IN HER NIGHTS

"CINDERELLA" PAINTS SELF PLAYING LEAD IN NEW "TRILBY"

These are the "evil eyes" of Edward W. Browning, millionaire, which peered fearfully out of the night at her and chilled her blood with horror, "Peaches" Browning, his wife, testified today. This was the first mention in her dramatic recital of love and disillusionment of the "evil eyes." Her mother told of threats against her.

'PEACHES' WAS AFRAID OF EVIL EYE

White Plains, N. Y., Jan. 26.—Likening "Bunny" Browning, her erstwhile husband, to "a dreadful octopus as he squirms in his chair before me and tries to catch me with his evil eye," and confessing "I fear him," "Peaches" Browning before entering court today said she hoped all she was going through has not been in vain.

The sixteen-year-old girl, who looks twenty-one (she doesn't mind folks saying that), confronted a crucial test when her husband's lawyer announced that he would give a history of her associations with young men before she met Browning.

"Peaches" and "Daddy," both gave out interviews before court opened. "Said "Daddy":

"Peaches talks about my wanting publicity and forcing her to pose for pictures. She had 1,500 pictures taken of herself after she left me.

"Peaches sat up there and told nothing but lies.

"The worst of it is that she can get away with it. She can bleed a man to death and go unpunished.

"As to the atrocious things she accuses me of, there is absolutely no truth in them.

"When I first knew them they owed money on their rent, and I paid that. They owed for their radio, and I paid for that. I should have been suspicious of them, but when a man is in love he will do anything.

And now "Peaches".

"No one has ever known the companionship that exists between my mother and me. It is as beautiful as it is rare. We both dote on each other. Mother has never had to scold me.

"I don't see how I can be all these cruel things Browning says I am if I love mother so entirely.

"I hope that all I have gone through has not been in vain. My soul cries out for peace. Where I tried to be charitable, I now confess I hold resentment against all that Browning has done.

"He is like a dreadful octopus as he squirms in his chair before me and tries to catch me with his evil eye. I confess I fear him.

"I want everyone to know about his way with young girls, and I hope my sad experience may be a warning to others."

How many chances did your hands take today?

For safety, wash with the toilet soap that removes germs, as well as dirt

ALMOST every single time you touched anything today—you took a chance with germs.

For germs lurk unseen almost everywhere—and you can't escape them. Whenever you touch trolley straps, door handles, public telephones, money, rugs, shoes, pets, books—there's always the danger that germs may get on the hands.

No wonder leading health authorities say hands are among the chief spreaders of sickness. See above list of 27 germ diseases that hands may carry home.

To avoid needless risk, every member of your family—youngster as well as grown-up—should use at all times the toilet soap that removes not only dirt, but germs, too.

Fine for the skin

Millions of men, women and children use Lifebuoy for the hands, the bath, as a shampoo—for every toilet purpose.

Delicate skins thrive on it and it keeps away perspiration odors—all day! Yet best of all—Lifebuoy helps protect against disease. Its purifying lather removes germs, as well as dirt.

Note its protecting hygienic scent

Lifebuoy is so different from other toilet and bath soaps that even its scent is different.

Not a perfume, but a clean, pleasantly hygienic scent which proves Lifebuoy gives greater protection. Even before you've finished your first cake, you'll learn to love this cleanest of all soap scents, which quickly evaporates after rinsing.

Without its antiseptic, Lifebuoy would still be a wonderful toilet soap—but you wouldn't get its protection.

Like millions of others, once you form the Lifebuoy habit, you'll wonder how any other soap ever satisfied you.

Lifebuoy costs so little

Lifebuoy costs no more—probably less—than the soap you now use—so the protection it gives you is actually free!

You can get Lifebuoy wherever soap is sold. You will know it by the red box and the cake—orange-red, the color of its pure palm-fruit oils. Lever Bros. Co., Cambridge, Mass.

What Robert L. Hunter, Roslindale, says:

Lifebuoy is what I call a real soap. Instant lather that gets the dirt off every time and leaves me feeling like a new man. And I like its wholesome, clean-smelling antiseptic odor. As I never know how many germs may be on my hands when I reach home, I always—to be on the safe side—have a good wash-up with Lifebuoy before I sit down to supper. The rest of the family like it, too.

ROBERT L. HUNTER,
40 Amherst St., Roslindale, Mass

From all over the country come letters like this. Now, more than ever, millions are turning to Lifebuoy.

"Guilty" ∾ Miller Gets Away ∾ By Jean McDonough

(Copyright, 1927, by The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

I TOLD THE LITTLE GIRL that her father had committed a crime about which she knew nothing. I wanted to help her and promised that I would do my best. She thanked me profusely and left. At the door she turned to say good-bye . . . a little smile, silently pleading, curved her pretty lips. The door closed quietly behind her. Now I felt that this child's unhappiness was too great a price to pay for avenging father's death.

AND YET WHEN I RECALLED that vision of father's spirit, I knew that I had done the right thing. I told myself that I must not let pity for Davis' daughter hinder the course of justice. After all, Davis had taken my father's life without thinking of me. Now he must pay, and his daughter, too, must suffer for his crime. Rarely does a criminal alone pay for his misdeed—someone entirely innocent usually is involved.

(Copyright, 1927, by The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

SUDDENLY I AWAKENED from my reverie. . . . A visiting card on my writing desk caught my eye. It was Miller's. I sensed something wrong immediately. "My dear Miss Alton," he had written on the reverse side, "I am sorry I did not find you in when I called. I wanted to explain things to you before I left for Canada. I shall be away for quite a long time on business." I gazed at the card in astonishment. Was it really business that called him there? I doubted it.

I VISIONED MILLER BOARDING the train—a fugitive from justice. Miller, the guilty man, was going free while Davis, who was innocent, was waiting his doom. I began to reason things out. Couldn't Miller leave for Canada on a business trip and still be an innocent man? Surely he could, I said to myself. All this suspicion of Miller was the result of my conversations with Charles. Really I had no grounds for doubting Miller's innocence. (Continued tomorrow.)

CHINESE CRISIS DELICATE, SAYS WASHINGTON

Washington, Jan. 26 (I.N.S.).—The situation at Shanghai, principal foreign port in China, was officially described by the State department today as being "very delicate." There are more than 4,000 Americans among the foreigners there.

Secretary Kellogg declined to say what instructions have been forwarded to Admiral C. S. Williams, commandant of the American naval forces there.

It is assumed however, that he will either land forces enough to protect American lives and property or remove the Americans who wish to leave.

A re-statement of the American government's policy in the Chinese problem will be made tomorrow by the State Department.

The government is intensely interested in the movement of two great Chinese armies near Hangchow, where a battle on a stupendous seal eto seal the fate of Shanghai is momentarily expected between northern troops under Chang Ts-Lin and Cantonese forces under Chang-Kai-Shek.

The futility of attempting to retain the foreign concessions in Shanghai without a widespread loss of lives is again emphasized here.

The millions of Chinese who live either in or near the International settlement would undoubtedly take part in any mob violence the Nationalist agitators may inspire.

To successfully defend the city, then, it would be necessary to drive out these natives even at the cost of a wholesale massacre.

The British and the Japanese already have taken steps toward defending the city, the former having under way a "Shanghai defence force" consisting of almost 20,000 men.

U. S. Warships Ready to Land 800 Men

Shanghai, Jan. 26 (A.P.).—Heavy concentration of Cantonese (Nationalist) troops on the Cheklang Province front has caused apprehension in Shanghai.

It is feared the landing of two companies of Punjabi troops tomorrow from Hong Kong will provide the match that will start a new anti-foreign conflagration.

The vanguard of reinforcements landed today—220 French troops and police from Haipong.

The Chinese New Year, February 2, is expected to prove a time of anxiety for Shanghai.

Five American warships, including the cruiser Pittsburgh, are here, capable of landing 800 men, the largest foreign naval contingent available locally at present.

Foochow, chief city of Fukien Province, reports that four-fifths of the American women and children of the Foochow district already have departed and that withdrawal of the last is progressing.

The Foochow Cantonese commander arrested 200 Chinese who were said to have been implicated in the recent anti-foreign riots. Of these, ten were executed.

DENOUNCE MOHAWK TRAIL SHACKS AND BILLBOARDS

Establishment of state forests along the Mohawk trail and the Jacob's Ladder route was urged at a legislative hearing today by Carl Wurtzbach, president of the Berkshire Hills Conference. The speaker declared that the routes are now lined with "shacks, supposed to be filling stations or hot dog stands."

Senator George Chamberlain of Springfield that the billboards in the section are a disgrace. "These two beautiful routes have been made hideous," Chamberlain declared.

150 OUT OF WORK BY FIRE IN WINCHENDON

Winchendon, Jan. 26 (A.P.).—A three-alarm fire of undetermined origin and a hot air explosion did $50,000 damage today to the woodenware plant of William Brown & Son, Lincoln street. Officials of the company said that the damage was so extensive that the plant, at which 150 are employed, cannot be operated again for at least two months.

Visits Boston

BISHOP TSU

Chinese Jesuit, recently elevated to a see by Pope Pius, visits Boston Catholic House for Propagation of the Faith.

The Rt. Rev. Simon Tsu, S. J., D. D., one of the six Chinese bishops recently consecrated in Rome, was a visitor today at the office of the Society for the Propagation of the Faith.

He is making a tour of the principal American cities carrying a message of gratitude from the people of his native land to the various Catholic societies that have contributed to the maintenance of missionaries in the Far East.

Bishop Tsu is the Vicar Apostolic of Haimen, a diocese less than 150 miles square and inhabited by 6,000,000 people. Of this population 33,000 are Catholics. There are 50,000 people of other Christian denominations and the remainder are pagans.

The Bishop explained in fluent French that most of the Catholics in his diocese are descendants of old Christian families converted 200 years ago by Jesuit fathers. There are 1,200 priests in the diocese.

The Rev. Dr. James Morrissey, S. J., D. D., of Dublin, Ireland, his secretary, and John Tsu, a nephew are accompanying the bishop.

He will address the St. John Seminarians at Brightaon and tomorrow will leave for Montreal.

WANTS BAY STATE ESTATE TAX MADE PERMANENT

Tax Commissioner Henry F. Long, at a hearing today before the House committee on ways and means, asked that the law extending the Massachusetts estate tax until such time as the Federal government repeals its tax be made permanent. He asked also that the provision whereby only estates of $2,000,000 or more are liable to the tax be eliminated and the section allowing credits against inheritance tax payments under the estate tax be striken out.

BOUNTY ON CROW URGED AT LEGISLATIVE HEARING

Payment by the State of a bounty of 25 cents for every crow killed was urged at a committee hearing today at the State House by Representative Thomas N. Ashton of Fall River, and J. L. Potter, chairman of the executive committee of the Massachusetts Associated Sportsmen. The crow was described as "the worst of all enemies of bird life, a great eater of eggs and young birds."

POEM READ AT BOINAY LOVE TRIAL

The reading of a poem called "Absolution," and more letters containing endearing terms, which she claims were sent her, featured today's session of the trial of suits aggregating $36 500 brought by Miss Daisy J. Turner, colored, East Lexington nursemaid, against Joseph V. Boinay, which are being heard by Judge Patrick M. Keating and a jury in Middlesex Superior Civil Court.

Miss Turner seeks $25,000 for alleged breach of promise to wed; $1,500 for an alleged malicious charge of larceny, and $10,000 for an alleged illegal search of her home. Miss Turner, who was on the stand again today, read the poem and several letters which she claims Boinay sent her.

POEM FOLLOWED QUARREL.

The poem, she testified, was sent her following a quarrel they had. One of its lines read:

"Your heart, where bitterness so long has lain; then may I seek and penitent, may win love's absolution, sought through years of pain."

Miss Turner testified she and Boinay had a quarrel in 1918 and the poem was sent to her in an envelope addresed in Boinay's handwriting. Subsequently they came together again in 1922, she stated.

"When you came together did you discuss the poem?" Miss Turner was asked in court.

"Yes," she answered. "The reason he treated me so he could not state. He said he was to blame and he was sorry he acted the way he did. He told me he sent the poem because he was heartbroken and sorry we had separated." The poem, she said, came to her while she was at her home in Grafton, Vt.

SAYS HE KISSED HER.

Miss Turner was also asked as to a line in a letter previously read to the effect "he was glad she had patched everything up so nice coming down the lane." Upon being asked to explain, Miss Turner said the "lane" referred to was the road leading from her home in Grafton, Vt. She said they had a little difficulty and Boinay came to Grafton. "He kissed me," she declared.

"He told me he loved me and wanted to make plans for continuing our love.. He wanted me to love him always," Miss Turner testified.

Most of the letters read at today's session started off with "Daisy Dear." There was also one postcard. Today's session of the trial like the previous days, found the courtroom crowded, with women in the majority.

HEIR OF LORD STRAVALGI CALLS ON GOVERNOR

Joseph Montague Kenworthy, heir to the title and estates of Lord Stravalgi, of the British House of Lords, called on Governor Fuller today. The visitor, who is visiting this country in the interest of the Zionist movement, although he himself is of Anglo-Saxon stock, believes the Laborites whom he represents in Parliament, will become the dominant party in England.

Mr. Kenworthy was accompanied by Elihu D. Stone, leader of the Zionist movement in New England and Jacob Rabinovitz, chairman of the local committee. He said his grandmother, a Scotchwoman, was the first white woman to cross the Rocky Mountains. His mother was Elizabeth Buchanan Cooper of Sacramento, Cal.

ASHLEY AT HOME AGAIN; TO TAKE OATH AS MAYOR

New Bedford, Jan. 26 (A.P.).—Mayor-Elect Charles S. Ashley returned to his home today from Phillips House, Massachusetts General Hospital, Boston, where he has been convalescing for the last two months following two operations in November.

Mr. Ashley was elected mayor December 7 for his 23d term by friends who ran a sticker campaign on his behalf. There is a possibility that he will take the oath of office tomorrow night. Mayor Edward R. Hathaway has been acting chief executive.

Not a Gray Hair on "Granny" of Four Generations, 92

Weare, N. H., Jan. 26 (I.N.S.).—Mrs. William H. Sleeper has reached the ripe old age of ninety-two years without a single gray strand appearing in her brown hair.

She became a great-great-grandmother with the birth of a son to her great-granddaughter, Mrs. Ruth Edwards of Berkeley, Cal.

fourth time," and asking him to be more careful.

She said: "I am distressed that Gristede's check has come back marked no funds. I will not say anything more before giving you a chance to explain, but unless you have something to say this is the last time and you must leave college and go to work. Please let me know immediately what caused your overdrawing."

The letter was taken by Dean C. W. Mendell of the college.

The letter however, was written in the friendliest of terms, and classmates today were more inclined to blame fear of the approaching examinations for the suicide. They said young Untermyer had been studying unusually hard, and the work had shown in a marked nervousness.

The youth had been dead for several hours when he was found hanging by a bathrobe cord.

Louis Untermyer Hastens to Scene of Son's Death

New York, Jan. 26 (I.N.S.).—"I simply cannot credit the report," Louis Untermyer, noted author, told International News Service today when told of the suicide of his son, Richard Starr Untermyer, in New Haven.

"I am not visibly upset," he said, "because I simply cannot accept the fact of Dick's death. I must go and convince myself physically."

Untermyer left by the noon train for New Haven.

Louis Untermyer is a noted poet, lecturer, critic and author. He was formerly vice-president of the Untermyer-Robbins and Charles Keller & Co., of Newark, N. J., but resigned all business connections in 1923 to devote his time to literary work.

Mrs. Louis Untermyer is the former Jean Starr of Zanesville, O. She is a poet and author.

THREE CAPTAINS HURT AT LEXINGTON BLAZE

Three fire captains were injured and two families driven to the street today when a blaze swept a two-story dwelling house at Nos. 10 and 12 Massachusetts avenue, Lexington.

The fire which started on the first floor from an undetermined cause, burned through the second story and gained considerable headway before the apparatus arrived. Damage was announced at approximately $5,000.

Captain William C. Mead of Arlington fire department was overcome by smoke. Captain Selon A. Cook of Lexington sustained a frozen ear and Captain Leaner Woods, also of Lexington, was injured about the head from a fall. The premises were owned by Samuel Bornstein, whose family occupied the first floor, at No. 12. Max Berman and his family lived at No. 10.

REPORTS GAIN IN TRUST BANK SAVINGS

Trust companies of Massachusetts on December 31, 1926, had total commercial department deposits of $537,987,251, against $545,635,361 on December 31, 1925, according to the Massachusetts Bank Commissioner.

Savings departments of Massachusetts trust companies had deposits of $136,971,509 on December 31, 1926, against deposits of $181,163,406 on October 30, 1926, and deposits of $163,753, 186 on December 31, 1925.

SELLING RUM ON BAY STATE WAR MEMORIAL SITE

That the only occupied building on the land bought by Massachusetts at St. Mihiel in France, to be used as a memorial to the men and women who died overseas, is a cafe, dispensing liquor, was revealed today at a legislative hearing by Representative Slater Washburn of Worcester.

Washburn suggested that this disgraceful condition be brought to the attention of Wayne B. Wheeler of the Anti Saloon League.

The speaker declared the site in its present neglected condition is an "eyesore" to the town, whose citizens cannot improve it because the title is vested in Massachusetts, and a "joke" to tourists.

He pleaded for a revival of the special commission which was established to provide for the erection of a memorial on the site, one acre of which was presented by the town and nine acres purchased by the state.

A letter from the cure of St. Mihiel, pointing out how offensive the Massachusetts property is, and suggesting the property be put into decent condition or returned to the township, was read at the hearing.

"Either go through with the memorial or sell the land back to the French authorities," he pleaded.

salaries of the two commissioners Any other economies can be effected at any time now by the chairman of the commission without further legislation, he said.

But if the bill goes through, he stated, it would mean an entire reorganization and give the Governor an opportunity to appoint a new commissioner and two associates, leaving the registry, now a part of the highway division, in the air.

The registrar declared that he had heard from four different sources that the present chairman was to resign or retire and that a new commissioner would then be appointed pledged not to reappoint Goodwin.

"That's all there is behind this bill—my position," he charged openly.

In answer to a question from the committee Goodwin said that he was originally appointed by the late Commissioner John N. Cole, that his term of office is indefinite and god for as "long as I behave myself." He can be removed, he said, with the consent of the Governor and council.

Prior to Goodwin's appearance reorganization as outlined by the Governor was favored by Chairman William F. Williams of the public works department, Frank E. Lyman, associate highway commissioner, and Charles P. Howard, chairman of the commission on administration and finance. Williams said that the saving from the two salaries would amount to $12,000 a year.

WITNESSES DEFEND CURLEY AT ENWRIGHT TRIAL

Two witnesses testified today in Superior Court that they have never seen former Mayor James M. Curley drunk, have never seen him in the striped garb of a convict and have never seen him with a ball and chain on his ankle.

The witnesses were testifying at the trial of Frederick W. Enwright, publisher of the suspended Boston Telegraph, in whose columns he is alleged to have criminally libeled Curley.

Former City Engineer Edward W Foye of Alban street, Dorchester, now a realtor, and John J. Curley, the ex-Mayor's brother and former city treasurer, were the first two witnesses of the trial.

Over the political career of "Jim" Curley, from 1898 when he broke into politics, to the present time, the direct and cross examinations of his rother traveled.

ONLY READ OF FIGHTS

But John Curley denied that he ever discussed his brother's career, discussed speeches or fights or mode of living, with Publiher Enwright. Aked whom he might have discussed them with, he said:

"I might have discussed them with a gentleman."

He admitted that he had heard of, or read in the newspapers, or so fights that his brother had been but he declared that the ex-Mayor was in the habit of defending himself.

One fight, he said, was back fifteen years or so, and Curley knocked down "Big Bill" Kelliher.

The witness said he might have read in the papers of a fight between hisb rother and a horseshoer named Cadigan. He said he remembered another fight in Northampton street, but denied knowing anything about a fight with Tom Curley.

FOYE SHOWS PAPER.

Former Auctioneer Foye, on the stand, produced from his pocket a copy of the Telegraph he said he purchased on the street on last October 8. The cartoon it contained was shown the jury and it was put in evidence.

Democrats of all degrees of importance were jammed into the courtroom, but there were not a few notables in the crowd.

Each side had the right to 22 peremptory challenges and 22 more for cause, but the government only challenged two men, Carl J. Schroder of North Shore road, Revere, and John Viola, also of Revere.

A lone veniremen was challenged by the defense. He was John H. Curley of East Fourth street, South Boston.

JURORS SWORN.

Louis A. Rich, manager, No. 25 Holmfield avenue, jury foreman; Charles S. Brock, manager, No. 295 Huntington avenue; John V. Campbell, salesman, Hotel Washington, Robert Campbell, saelsman, No. 368 East Eighth street, South Boston; James P. Curran, salesman, No. 4 Riverside square; Martin L. Doyle, wood worker, No. 612 East Seventh street; Charles H. Evans, clerk, No. 86 Montclair avenue; Garrison H. Grunt, merchant, No. 124 Devon street; John J. Jones, clerk, No. 17 Bartlett street; John J. Kenney, carpenter, No. 18 Wiggin street; Norman Mintz, salesman, No. 1298 Commonwealth avenue, and William E. Rock, No. 151 Falcon street.

Reading of the indictment consumed half an hour. Then Assistant District Attorney Daniel J. Lyne, prosecutor, with Assistant Daniel Gillen, requested that a cartoon appearing in the Telegraph be admitted as an exhibit, because it could not be described adequately in the indictment.

CARTOON IN EVIDENCE.

Judge Bishop allowed the cartoon, over objection by Michael H. Sullivan of Salem, chief defense counsel, associated with former State Senator James H. Brennan, in defending Enwright.

The cartoon, which depicted former Mayor Curley, according to Prosecutor Lyne, showed the figure of a man dressed in striped prison garb and with a ball and chain on his ankle.

It was shown to the jury, with Prosecutor Lyne pointing out that the nose of the caricatured figure had been greatly lengthened and brought to a point, that the brow had been narrowed to give it a low appearance, and that, in other ways, according to his accusation, the cartoon was executed in a manner tending to hold the ex-Mayor up to "hatred, contempt and ridicule."

Curley was never engaged in thuggery, the prosecutor then declared in his opening. He characterized Curley as "a citizen of Boston who has held public office and is president of a bank.

There never was a ball and chain on Curley's ankle, Lyne said; he never wore a convict's suit, and his brother John Curley, never said of the ex-Mayor that he was a thug-fighter

Publisher Enwright was malicious in his alleged attack on Curley, the prosecutor declared, and in the fight in State street Enwright struck the first blow at Curley.

"Following the fight," Prosecutor Lyne said, "Enwright was actuated by a spirit of passion and revenge to cause this publication to be sold in the streets."

14 STATE WITNESSES.

The former Mayor was one of 14 government witnesses sworn.

In the courtroom were seen City Councilor Michael J. Ward, former secretary for Curley; former City Councilor James Purcell; former City Treasurer, and the ex-Mayor's brother, John J. Curley; Marks Angell; Frank Brennan; Edward M Hamlin, the stockbroker; John A Sullivan, former Finance Commissioner and corporation counsel; former Congressman Peter F. Tague; former State Senator George F. Monahan, Frank Linehan of South Boston, and Thomas J. Giblin of East Boston.

SEEK AMENDMENTS TO LAW TAXING MOVIES

Hartford, Jan. 26 (A.P.).—Although State Commissioner W. L. Blodgett in his annual report to the general assembly recommended the tax on movie films enacted in 1925 be repealed as "fundamentally unsound," Representative Harold R Duran', long identified with the industry, has offered amendments to the law to make it "more equitable" and to retain films as a source of revenue to the State.

WOMAN, 80, SAVED FROM JAMAICA PLAIN FIRE

CARRIED OUT BY POLICE

Mrs. Jennie Lewis, above, and Mrs. Sarah Duffy, partly blind, were carried from the third floor of No. 3 Green street in a fire that tied up traffic for thousands of commuters hurrying to work this morning.

WOMEN SAVED FROM FIRE

During the fire thousands of early morning commuters were delayed by the tie-up of street car traffic.

The bitter cold caused the spray from the hose lines to freeze almost as soon as it fell, adding to the difficulties of the firemen. Fanned by a stiff north wind, the department had difficulty in confining the blaze to the building.

Starting in the basement of one of the stores, the flames worked up and out through the roof.

When Sergeant Clark with Patrolmen Greenwood, Foley and Murphy arrived, they were told of two aged women on the third floor of the building. They rushed through the smoke filled hallway and carried the two down stairs. They were Mrs. Sarah Duffy, partly blind, and Mrs. Jennie Lewis.

The street floor at No. 650 was occupied by the Windsor Pharmacy No. 652 by the barber shop of Alphonso Luciano, and No. 654 by the Beacon Real Estate office. In the ell in the rear and opening off Star lane, is the cobbling shop of L. Weiner.

The second floor on the Centre street front was the home of James Habalty. On the Green street side is the store of C. N. Leslie. The second floor is vacant, while on the third dfloor were the apartments of Mrs. Duffy and Mrs. Lewis.

Stockholders Take Mill

Fall River, Jan. 26 (A.P.).—The Ancona mill, one of the best equipped plants in Fall River for the manufacture of high-grade cotton weaves and employing about 300 men and women, was taken over by stockholders today as a result of the closing down of the mill Monday. Morgan Butler, treasurer of the company, resigned

WHEELER CALLS FOR SHOWDOWN ON NICARAGUA

Washington, Jan. 26 (A.P.).—The Senate was challenged today by Senator Wheeler, Democrat, Montana, "to take a stand either with our State Department and its tyranny or against it" on the Nicaraguan question.

In an address teeming with barbed shafts aimed at both President Coolidge and Secretary Kellogg, the Montanan also called on the Senate Foreign Relations Committee to "hold a public hearing in which the whole subject may be aired in the light of day."

Accusing President Coolidge of wittingly or unwittingly withholding from Congress the true facts as to Nicaragua, Senator Wheeler said the executive's recent message to Congress showed that he had been misled in his dealings with Nicaragua.

Lawrence Dennis, the American charge at Managua, was described by Wheeler as the State Department's "King-maker" in Nicaragua. He added that every strategic post in Nicaragua, fiscal and military, is in the hands of appointees of the State Department.

Clash With Marines Feared by Sacasa

By JOHN PAGE.

(Copyright, 1927, International News Service.)

Puerto Cabezas, Nicaragua, Jan. 26.—The danger of a clash between United States Marines and Liberal troops was pointed out today by Dr. Juan B. Sacasa, head of the Liberal government, in an exclusive statement to International News Service.

Dr. Sacasa deplored the situation, but charged that the action of the Marines in constantly extending neutral zones had aroused hostility.

Oil Well Permits Granted Provisionally, Says Mexico

Mexico City, Jan. 26 (A.P.).—Considering that public opinion, not knowing the antecedents of the case, might have been surprised by the statement that certain oil companies were looking upon the cancellation of their drilling permits as an act of confiscatory character, the Department of Industry and Commerce says it believes itself duty bound "to explain the truth."

The only interpretation open for the oil companies' statement, the Department explained, is that it was inspired by passion or malevolence. All drilling permits as well as permits for the exploitation of oil wells up to December 31, it was added, were granted in "absolutely precarious" form and, were of a provisional, revocable character, it being specifically stated in them that they would be subjected to the new petroleum law once it was enforced.

Committee Will Not Give Out Kellogg's Statement

Washington, Jan. 26 (A.P.)—The Senate foreign relations committee decided today not to make public the transcript of Secretary Kellogg's statement of two weeks ago on the Nicaraguan situation.

The committee postponed action on the Wheeler resolution for withdrawal of marines from Nicaragua, and the Norris resolution calling for an investigation of charges that the State Department sought to influence press associations to carry anti-Mexican propaganda.

EXHIBIT HEAD OF GULLIVAN GIRL TO JURY

Woodstock, Vt., Jan. 26.—One of the most sensational and ghastly bits of evidence ever staged in a murder trial in Vermont will occur today when the head of Miss Cecelia Gullivan, which has been preserved in alcohol since her slaying, will be shown the jury by Dr. Fred Kent, assistant to Dr. Charles F. Whitney in charge of the medical investigation.

Dr. Whitney, although on the stand for the greater part of today's session of the trial, was called to Rutland on a manslaughter case.

Special Prosecutor Raymond Trainor today centered his examination about the weapons which the state alleges were used in the slaying of Miss Gullivan by John C. Winters, on trial for the crime. The state contends that a two-inch carpenter's chisel and a piece of an automobile spring used as a tire iron, were used as weapons in the murder.

Prosecutor Trainor asked Dr. Whitney, who was on the witness stand, if he had measured the wounds in Miss Gullivan's head. Dr Whitney replied that he had and that the hair had been cut off very sharply, also that both ends of the wounds were very sharp. One edge of the wounds was beveled and the other straight. In his opinion the wounds would correspond to those made by a beveled sharp instrument.

"Did you place the chisel in the wounds on the scalp?" asked Prosecutor Trainor.

"Yes," replied Dr. Whitney. "They fitted pretty well."

Dr. Whitney then described the welt on Miss Gullivan's neck and how the measurment compared to the tire iron where it began to bend. It was the same in width and length. In regard to the cuts on the bridge of the victim's nose and her cheek bone, Dr. Whitney said these fitted the corner of the tire iron.

At this point Dr. Whitney was called away and Dr. Kent, his assistant, prepared to exhibit the head of the murdered woman which had been brought from the state laboratory.

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON SOCIETY

Prince William of Sweden to Be Guest of Honor at Reception at Symphony Hall Tomorrow Evening

HAVING IN HER CHARGE THE TRANSFORMATION OF an unadorned hall into semblance of baronial splendor, Mrs. Walter Merriam Pratt is the busiest of matrons, as she dashes about town gathering rugs and tapestries for the Prince William reception at Symphony Hall tomorrow evening. His Royal Highness will meet a thousand or so of important Bostonians in the upper hall at Symphony; this follows immediately on completion of the Prince's lecture on big game hunting.

THAT THIS VISITING PRINCE of a European reigning house is by all odds the most modest and unassuming of royalties everyone in town agrees. So the pomp usually surrounding one of his high estate is entirely absent. And as to imposing functions in his honor during his visit, those are taboo if His Highness has his royal way. This, of course, unless some enterprising Boston matron succeeds in getting his consent to something regally staged with him as the lion of the evening.

IMMEDIATELY AFTER THE ROYAL ENTERTAINING is ended Mrs. Pratt goes to New York to make a family visit before she and Mr. Pratt embark for the South to cruise over turquoise seas to interestingly picturesque foreign ports. She stays in New York with her aunt, Mrs. William Harkness, and her cousin, Mrs. Cornelius Tangeman. Mrs. Pratt was before her marriage Miss Marietta Harkness, of that important Gotham clan. It was the stunning Mrs. Tangeman whom Newport dubbed the handsomest woman of the colony, a Summer or so ago when balloting on the "most beautiful" and "best dressed" and "most accomplished" feminine Newporter enlivened a local charity fete.

IT IS QUITE APPARENT that Mrs. John M. B. Churchill of Boylston street is contemplating another Atlantic crossing, judging from the pleasant errands regarding passports and other such details as take her downtown frequently. Mrs. Churchill is one of the fortunate Boston set which may divide its time between life here and life abroad in some favored haunt. Practically a good half of her days are spent abroad. As I saw her recently on business bent she was distinctly good to look upon, wearing her favorite street attire of perfectly tailored dark tweeds set off by a trig velvet chapeau and seal furs, and in her sparkling eyes that joie de vie a debutante might envy.

THE VERY DEARTH OF DEBUTANTE AFFAIRS serves to increase the importance of such prettily informal affairs as the luncheon Mrs. Robert Eliot Goodwin gave yesterday in honor of Miss Betty Moulton. The Goodwins are occupying the Davenport Brown house in Beacon street during the Brown stay on the other side, and the luncheon for Miss Moulton and tomorrow's similar affair for Miss Dorothy Quincy Nourse are both given there. Miss Moulton is doing duty again at Titania's Palace today, when the Junior League takes charge and helps lend eclat to the Palace's last day's stay in Boston. Shortly all the marvels of this fairy dream will be tenderly wrapped by the hands of Sir Nevile and Lady Beatrice Wilkinson and their trusted helpers, and sent on the next step of its round-the-world journey—Baltimore, I believe.

THAT VERY DISTINCTIVE YOUNG GOTHAM GIRL, the blonde and slender Miss Antoinette Frissell, ends her Boston stay today or tomorrow and goes back to the Big City after a visit with her particular friend, Miss Berthe Braggiotti. Miss Frissell at the Supper Dance in palest dawn pink crepe and gold banded sandals, and Miss Braggiotti with her fine head molded by its smooth, close bob rising from a severe frock of mint green velvet, were an effective contrast. Louis Shaw was their host for dinner and theatre preceding the Supper Dance, and others of the Shaw clans entertained in honor of Miss Frissell at a North Shore week-end house party.

THE SLENDER FIGURE OF MRS. ROBERT B. ALMY stopping a prancing steed was a spirited sight at the second New Riding Club show, and delighted the gallery, bringing back the feats of her Rosamond Adie days when she was consistently a ribbon winner. Mrs. Almy is perhaps the very cleverest of all the clever riders in the feminine young set, which is indeed an exalted place to occupy, considering the talents in that direction the entire young set possess. All the favorites were out at the Riding Club show, Miss Betty Bird, and Miss Betty Kimpton, and all those other young people so perfectly at home in the saddle. Of the older contingent, Miss Amy Peabody is a distinguished ring performer, with a fine string of thoroughbreds.

MISS AMY PEABODY

Member of the Norfolk Hunt Club and the New Riding Club has a string of thoroughbred ribbon winners.

A DEAL OF INFORMAL entertaining by girlhood friends is going on for Mrs. R. G. Vander Woude, the former Miss Mary Wendell, while she is in town. She and her young son will be in this country for some two weeks more before she goes back to her home in London. Just now and until her departure she will be the house guest of her relative, Mrs. Barrett Wendell.

MARY YOUNG IS WELCOMED AT CASTLE SQUARE

By NICHOLAS YOUNG.

IN an open manner and by such means as you usually discover it on the Rialto, history repeated itself at the Castle Square last evening when John Craig led Mary Young to the footlights and smiled as she thanked a friendly audience for the more than ample demonstration of approval given to "Girl Overboard."

Mary Young

Flowers and cheers, and all that sort of thing, gave Miss Young exactly what she needed to faithfully tell the story laid down for her by her actor-author husband. By this you may properly assume that John Craig, veteran of many soul-stirring battles with the arts in upper Tremont street regions, is now making his own plays and artfully depending upon the talents of Miss Young in their presentation.

By any measure, as you may take it in the theatre, there was as much sentiment as art in the return of the Craigs to the Castle Square. While the sharp eyes of the critic might discover tender spots in Mr. Craig's play, there was no denying the youth and vivacity of Mary Young. Of course, bobbed hair does not, of itself tear off the graceful touches of time, but a good barber, linked with a serviceable diet, has a great deal to do with the natural charm of a good looking woman.

Frankly, Mary Young was much better than her husband's play, easily described as a quasi-romantic farce. There were many mystifying moments in the comedy. There were none in Miss Young's interpretation of it. When the situations faltered she came to the rescue; when you were bewildered with the comedy complex and with mysticisms dragged in by the ears Miss Young took a firm hold of the situation and, at least, turned the proceedings into good, respectable comedy.

There was much that was imaginative in "Girl Overboard"—and much that must test the credulity of the hard-fisted playgoer. But there was never a moment when Mary Young did not hold her audience in the palm of her pretty hand and make them like it. As something like a satire of "Aloma" and her flitful wanderings in the passionate South Seas, "Girl Overboard" appears to fill the playgoer's bill.

LLOYD'S LATEST COMING HERE

An annual event in the motion picture industry is the first showings of the yearly Harold Lloyd production. The bespectacled comedian makes but one picture in a twelvemonth and his latest, called "The Kid Brother," is now ready to be released in Boston.

It will be shown simultaneously next week at the Washington Street Olympia, the Scollay Square, the Fenway, the Capitol in Allston and the Central Square in Cambridge.

Reports from the few large cities where the feature has already opened indicate that Lloyd is still the greatest box-office draw in the movie world.

"The Kid Brother" is filled with side-splitting "gags"—comedy situations worked up by Lloyd and his corps of comedy experts.

The film tells the story of the youngest brother of a family that prides itself on the physical strength of its men. His father is the sheriff of the county and his two older brothers are quite the largest men the casting director in Hollywood was able to find.

CHIEF JUSTICE RUGG TO BE DINNER GUEST

Chief Justice Rugg of the Massachusetts Supreme Court, B. U. School of Law '86, Chief Justice Walter P. Hall of the Superior Court, and Dean Homer Albers of the Boston University School of Law, a graduate in '95, will be guests of honor when the Boston University Law School Association has its annual dinner and reunion on February 5.

The dinner will be in the Copley Plaza and Charles Seymour Whitman, president of the American Bar Association, will be one of seven prominent speakers.

SULU PRINCESS REBELS; MEN CAN'T FIGHT HER

Manila, Jan. 26 (A.P.)—The Philippine constabulary, an organization of fighting men which has faced every variety of combat, stood at "parade rest" today and perused its book of etiquette in search for rules for fighting a woman.

The woman is one of royal blood—Princess Tarhata Karam—attractive niece of the Sultan of Sulu, who is reported to be holding an entire constabulary regiment at bay at Kolo Island, where her husband, Datu Tahil, high Moro dignitary, is entrenched with 200 armed followers.

The Moro rebels are defying the entire Philippine government, and the constabulary has hesitated to attack Tahil's forces for fear of killing or injuring the Princess. Such an eventuality would enrage the Sultan and bring down the wrath of the entire Moro population on the government.

The constabulary forces are trying to entice the Princess away from the scene of conflict.

Princess Tarhata is a peculiar mixture of east and west. She was educated at the University of Illinois. Recently she entered the harem of Datu Tahil as his fourth wife, giving up bobbed hair and short skirts.

Tahil rebelled in 1913 when his harem favorite at that time joined him in battle. He fled at night, leaving his wife behind and she was killed. Tahil later was pardoned.

An Amazing Love Story of a Misunderstood Hub Working Girl

• Gay Moore and Christine Noe, her cousin, are employed in the State Street house of Johnstone Baird, Gay as a typist and Christine as telephone operator. Christine is in love with Roger Pennington and Gay is in love with Stanley Baird, Johnstone Baird's son. Stan's family disown him when he marries Gay, but they happily start housekeeping in a tiny flat, with Stan working as automobile mechanic. Christine is discharged from her position for telling Peggy Baird, Stan's sister, that Penny is not in the office. She jealously imagines that Penny is in love with Peggy. Stan receives a proposition from Mr. Brooks, the father of Mimi Brooks, whom Gay is sure is in love with Stanley. Stanley refuses the proposition to Gay's relief. Christine and Penny are married and leave for a European honeymoon. Christine is wild with delight when Penny takes her to the shops in Paris.

CHAPTER 27.

In England Penny wanted to spend a little time wandering through quaint country places. He had pictured a rather idyllic honeymoon [illegible] himself and his girl roaming dreamily in lovely remote places.

But Christine was interested only in London, the shops, bright restaurants, theatres.

He gave in unprotesting, smothering disappointment. What Christy wanted she must have—sparkling fun.

There's More to This than Health!

Cleans So Thoroughly, Even Perspiration Can't Offend

All the trick laxatives in the world can't tempt people who understand the properties of cascara.

A hundred different drugs will purge the bowels, but a little natural cascara purifies the system clear through. Cleanses even the pores of your skin. Renders perspiration as inoffensive as so much dew!

Your grandparents took "salts," and slowly washed away the mucous membrane with the waste! Mineral oils are better, but they leave the coating that your blood must then carry off through the pores. But when you cascarize the system you get rid of all the poisons by normal muscular action of the bowels.

Don't get in the habit of taking medicine for constipation—or even for auto-intoxication. If you have the habit, stop it. A candy cascaret is a delightful form in which to take cascara; children love them and the taste tempts most grown-ups to take "more." And what a comfort to know you are in that clean, wholesome condition that does away with any need of deodorants, even in warmest weather! Try a cascaret tonight! All druggists, 10c and 25c.

"EXCITEMENT used to cause such acidity in my system that everyone around me was conscious of it—even outdoors. It was a lucky day I found the sweetening effects of the candy laxative—

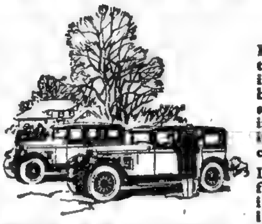
Keep Batteries Upright

The practice of placing dry "B" batteries on their sides or back is strongly disapproved. Keep batteries standing upright if it is desired to get from them the longest possible service.

What ENGINEERING LEADERSHIP means to the owner of a Willys-Knight



To the Willys-Knight owner, Engineering Leadership means many definite and tangible advantages not found in other cars of this size and price.

It means you enjoy the exclusive advantage of the patented Knight sleeve-valve engine that improves with use.

It means improved engine efficiency—due to new-type manifolding the efficiency of the "70" and Great Six Willys-Knight engines has been vastly increased.

It means positive, mechanical 4-wheel brakes—of the same type used in 97% of leading European cars.

It means Belflex Shackles, improving riding qualities, and reducing noise.

And it means adjustable front seats—and a steering wheel adjustable to 3 different positions.

Come in and see these two unusually beautiful, exceedingly powerful and efficient Willys-Knight creations.

SPEED, ACCU[illegible] THE DAY IT HAPPENS

RUNYON says

Copyright, 1927, [illegible] Service, Inc.

A CORRESPONDENT suggests the thought that the movies are as much responsible for the interest in sport as any other single agency.

I quite agree with this view. The news reels have especially contributed largely to creating public interest in pastimes of one kind or another.

I am inclined to the opinion that the news reels have made more participants in sport, and more new fans than anything else, although I do not forget the story pictures revolving about characters and [illegible]. The news reel photographers [illegible] over every sports event of any importance [illegible] in the country. They unfold the world's series, the big tennis matches, the golf tournaments, and the great boat races before the eyes of the movie crowds. They show the [illegible] fans the sport of every land and every season.

Damon Runyon

And gazing on these [illegible] of sport, and getting a [illegible], it is quite likely that many persons then and there get the desire to see the actual transaction and perhaps the urge to participate.

Movies an Incentive to Sport Lovers

I know that I have been strangely wishful of a pair of skiis and a nice long hill with a high take-off ever since seeing a news reel of the Dartmouth boys hopping over the snow at Hanover.

OF course I realize that skiing is no business for a man of my years. Still it strikes me as no more hazardous and less expensive than another pastime which produced in me the longing to participate after seeing a news reel presentation of same.

This is speed boat racing. I saw a depiction of a few heats on the smooth waters of San Diego harbor not long ago, and it struck me that the boys driving those shells must have gotten a great bang out of it. But I know I shall never have enough money to operate a speed boat, while it is conceivable that I may get far enough ahead of the sheriff and the income tax department some day to own a pair of skiis.

Speed Boat and Skiis Have Big Lure

The news reels now commonly all slow motion pictures to their unveilings of action events, and it is these slow motion pictures that are of the greatest value to the spectators and to sport.

Pictures of baseball, football swimming, tennis and other sports reveal the technicalities of the pastimes and show the beginner the best way to learn them.

MOREOVER, the movies settle many an argument. For instance, a motion picture of the dives of Miss Betty Becker in the 1924 Olympic games proved that her "full twist" dive, over which there was some debate, was genuine.

After seeing the pictures the officials were convinced that the dive, as it appeared to the naked eye, had been too quickly executed for the judges to catch. Therefore Miss Becker's "full twist" was adjudged authentic and she won the championship.

MURCHISON MAY SET RECORD

Long Standing 40-Yard Mark Threatened in B. A. A. Meet

By STED CHANDLER

No part of a track meet furnishes as many thrills to the average fan as the sprints. True, they are quickly over, but they are jammed with more action than any other event. The Boston Athletic Association games at the Arena, February 5, will include one of the finest sprint fields Boston has ever seen.

Not alone because of the entrants, but because also of a certain pairing which bears the seed of another shattered record. The circumstances are these: In 1905 Billy Eaton of Boston ran the 40-yard dash in 4 2-5 seconds. That record has stood untouched for these twenty-two years. Several men have done 4 3-5, but no one except Eaton has ever negotiated the world's record time.

MAY SHATTER RECORD.

At the Knights of Columbus games, however, Al Miller of Harvard, running in his best form, hit 4 3-5 in three different heats. Miller will have as one of his opponents at the Unicorn meet, Loren Murchison, Olympic star, who is conceded to be the faster man over the short distances.

Therefore, in order to defeat Miller, Murchison will quite evidently have to equal Eaton's record. And there is a chance that Miller may propel his bulk to a victory over Murchison, in which case, it will be he who will have to hit four two.

Most of the local critics figure that Al has reached his peak; that he has squeezed every bit of speed that his 200-pound form holds. It seems logical, for Miller, built like anything but a sprinter, has done more phenomenal running already than one would suspect he ever could.

Still, he has proved during his rivalry with Frank Hussey, that he has quite a heart down the lanes and if Murchison is in form and presses Miller, he may be able to get that last fifth of a second out of his system. The most remote and spectacular contingency which could develop from this reasoning would be a 4 2-5 dead heat between Miller and Murchison.

In this case, however, the rest of the field must be taken into consideration. It is an array seldom if ever equalled. In addition to Murchison and Miller, Frank Hussey of B. C. will be there. So will Henry Hormel of New York University, former Medford High star who holds the 300-yard schoolboy record. Chet Bowman, once of Syracuse, who ran in the last Olympics, is another star to be present.

MORRILL IS TO RUN.

Ernest Morrill, Boston University's fine sprinter, who has shown exceptionally well this year, Harold Mostrom of Bowdoin, Maine State 100-yard champion; George Mittlesdorf of Colby, well known on local tracks; Quinn of Holy Cross, who defeated Houben last year; A. C. Cooley and Hank Moore of Dartmouth, and John "Rip" Ordway of Yale are the others.

That's a real field. Reams might be written about each one of these men. Most of them have already firmly established their reputations in Boston. A short dash between these men reeks with possibilities. Which, of course, is one of the chief attractions of the shorter events.

The very short sprints are sometimes passed over as more or less freak events. But in this case, you not only have eleven of the East's best speed artists, but you have a definite object for them to aim at; the long standing world's record of Billy Eaton, which has never been equalled since it was made.

You have two men, Miller and Murchison, who stand not only a possible, but a probable chance of hitting it. And there are nine others who may have the ability somewhere in their systems. What more can you ask?

DUNDEE HURTS ANKLE TRAINING

Baltimore, Jan. 26 (A. P.)—Joe Dundee, Baltimore boxer, and a leading contender for the welterweight championship held by Pete Latzo, is laid up today with a fractured right foot suffered while training in his gymnasium. An X-ray showed several small bones in the instep fractured. Later today his physician will put the injured ankle in a plaster cast and it may be six weeks before Dundee will be able to resume training, the doctor said.

Meanwhile his scheduled bout here with Johnny Mendelsohn of Milwaukee, next Monday night, and other proposed battles, are held in abeyance. While sparring, Dundee caught his foot in the canvas when he attempted to sidestep. When he stopped and removed his shoe, his ankle had swollen to twice its normal size.

SWIM HERO'S ENTRANCE INTO MOVIES DELAYED

Hollywood, Cal., Jan 26 (A.P.)—George Young, Canadian youth who won the $25,000 prize in the Catalina Channel swim, failed in his first attempt to break into the films. Negotiations between Young and Famous Players-Lasky, in whose studio he recently underwent film tests, were dropped when it was found that it would be impossible for the producers to use the swimmer in a picture until May. Young's managers insisted that the filming must start at once to release him for vaudeville tours. The producers said Young's film tests showed the youth to have a "pleasing screen appearance."

FIDEL LABARBA, FLYWEIGHT CHAMPION
Note the slave bracelet—they all wear 'em on the Coast.

LaBarba to Quit Ring in Fall to Study at Leland-Stanford

By JACK CONWAY

FIDEL LABARBA, world's flyweight champion, has smiled his way into the hearts of those Bostonians who have had the good fortune to meet him since his arrival in this city. This sparkling youth from the sunny slopes of far away California has more color than Gene Tunney. He has that irresistible something that draws people to him and makes them like him.

While Tunney, a literary giant as well as the greatest heavyweight in the history of the ring in the opinion of Tex Rickard, is carrying on his debate over books with George Bernard Shaw, LaBarba is preparing to enter Leland Stanford University in California.

"I shall quit the ring this Fall and enter Leland-Stanford University," Fidel told me during a chat in this office. "I have already met with the entrance requirements and by the time I begin my college course I shall have enough money saved to pay my expenses for four years.

"I prize a college education above everything else. One can be stripped of a ring title as well as money. An education is something of which a person cannot be deprived by a sudden turn of fate. It is a continual source of satisfaction.

"I shall study economics while in college. It is my int[illegible] to prepare myself for the stock and bond business. While attending Lincoln High School in Los Angeles I worked for two years in a bond house and I like the business immensely."

Like College Student

LaBarba talked slowly and was careful in his selection of words. He impressed me more as of the type of our modern college students than [illegible] of the most spectacular [illegible] boxer in the history of the ring.

Fidel is a fastidious dresser. He had on a dark business suit, sported a snappy silk handkerchief in his [illegible]. He wore a bright tie in wh[illegible] pin sparkled.

LaBarba had on black shoes above [illegible] was a touch of bright socks.

I noticed a gold linked bracelet on the champion's right wrist. He was quick to realize that the bracelet had been detected.

"That creates a lot of talk here in the East," said LaBarba. "Out on the Coast everybody wears bracelets. The fad started in the movie colony at Hollywood and has spread all along the Coast. Even some of the preachers get up in their pulpits on Sundays adorned with bracelets.

"A Mexican girl who is showing in the movies on the Coast presented me with my bracelet. She got it in Mexico. It is composed of heavy gold links. It was necessary for her to have a dozen links taken out of the bracelet so that it would not be too large for me."

I thought I had a clue to a romance and asked Fidel if the Mexican girl was his sweetheart. He laughed good naturedly as he re[illegible].

"A champion has not time for sweethearts," he said. "I was engaged at one time, but decided I was too young to get married. Since then I have been giving all of my time to boxing.

"When in California, I live with my father and two sisters. I also have four brothers, but they are all older than I am and are established in business."

Likes Football Best

I asked the little champion to tell me about his early interest in athletics and what was his favorite sport.

"It is easy for me to name my favorite sport," was the quick reply. "I am for football first, last and all the time. That's a great game.

"When at high school, I played football. I divided my time between quarterback and halfback. I also played basketball when at high school.

"I regret I cannot play football at Leland Stanford. I don't think, though, they will object to my acting as a cheer leader. They don't rate cheer leaders as amateurs and pros do they?"

And LaBarba smiled that golden smile of the West that gets right under your skin and then penetrates deep down into your heart.

"I have been reading about the football controversy between Harvard and Princeton," resumed LaBarba. "Such misunderstandings

LANDIS HAS DECISION READY

Opinion Is That Both of the Players Will Be Exonerated

By COPELAND C. BURG,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

CHICAGO, Jan. 26—Ty Cobb and Tris Speaker will know their fate tomorrow.

Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis announced today he would decide Thursday as to the status of the former Detroit and Cleveland American League club managers.

Whether the shadow cast on the records of the peerless diamond pair by a story told the baseball czar by "Dutch" Leonard, former Detroit pitcher, that Ty and Tris were involved in an alleged "thrown" game in 1919, is to be lifted will be finally determined by Landis.

Judge Landis stated he will make a formal announcement covering the cases of the two accused stars.

Complete exoneration for Cobb and Speaker and repudiation of Leonard's entire story is expected.

The Cleveland Indians want Tris Speaker back. If the gray-thatched outfielder is restored to the best baseball circles by Judge Landis, as everybody expects he will be, President Barnard is willing to forget the past and sign Tris up.

President Navin of Detroit has expressed the same general idea about Ty Cobb. Ty and Tris were ruled out of the game by Ban Johnson, but now that Ban has been eased, the past is forgotten.

Commissioner Landis, after the Chicago Battle of the Century had fizzled, said that both great stars might be absolved from all blame and so should return to their former clubs.

This excused the magnates, and killed all expectations of National League for the exiled heroes. If Ty and Tris go back to their original clubs, the firing will cease, and baseball will settle back to normalcy.

President E. S. Barnard of the Indians has admitted that he would like nothing better than to sign Speaker to play center field for the tribe next season, but, according to semi-official reports, Cleveland will bid for Speaker's services only to utilize him later as trading material.

The late James C. Dunn handed out $50,000 and three players to the Boston Red Sox for the peerless outfielder and the widow of the late magnate is reported to be anxious to get at least part of the purchase price back.

It is generally understood that the New York Giants, Philadelphia Athletics and Washington are ready to sign Speaker the moment he is vindicated. So Cleveland will have tough competition.

TWO EAGLES IN TRACK MEET

Captain Luke McCloskey and Joe McCabe will represent Boston College at the St. Joseph's Catholic Club games which will pass into the record books at Newark, N. J., this evening.

McCloskey will endeavor to get his first leg on the Butler Memorial Cup by outstepping a fast field over the 1,000-yard distance. This cup, which is valued at five hundred dollars, will be donated to the runner who wins the Butler Memorial 1,000 three times.

McCabe is booked to run the Governor Moore 300-yard dash. This is his first year with the varsity track team but he is quite a sprinter. Joe ran some beautiful races as a member of the Eagle freshman relay team last year and still possesses the same form plus a lot of added speed.

McCabe holds the 300-yard and the one-lap records for the Boston College board track. Coach Ryder predicts that McCabe will be one of the most successful sprinters in the country before he receives his sheepskin from the Heights.

COAST ROOKIE WILL GET TRYOUT WITH PIRATES

Pittsburgh, Pa., Jan. 26 (A.P.)—Richard Bartell, 19-year-old shortstop of Oakland, Cal., who played last year in the Butte Mines League, will be given a tryout with the Pittsburgh Pirates this year, according to announcement by the Pirate management.

YANKS IN FOUR PLAYER DEAL

New York, Jan. 26 (A.P.)—A deal between the New York Yankees and the St. Louis Browns involving four or more players, is reported under way by New York newspapermen on their way to New York with Colonel Jacob Ruppert, Yankee president, from the American League club owners meeting in Chicago Sunday.

The swap is said to involve Pitchers Sam Jones and Walter Beall of the Yankees and Outfielder Cedric Durst, and Pitcher Joe Giard of the Browns. A trade last December, in which the Yankees offered Jones, Beall and a third pitcher for [illegible] Giard and either McManus or Robertson, infielders, fell through when the Yanks failed to secure Pitcher Stewart of the Toronto Internationals, to complete the deal, the writers said.

They disclosed that President Ball of the Browns yesterday refused a trade along this same line, whereupon the Yankees substituted a second proposition which St. Louis is now considering.

NAVY TO GET SOUTH DAKOTA GRID STAR

Sioux City, Ia., Jan 26 (A P)—Bill Dunham, the premier athlete of South Dakota University who drives a delivery wagon in his spare moments at college, has been given an appointment to the United States Naval Academy. He has already won six letters in football and track, and likely will have two more in basketball and track before graduation.

Harvard Sextet and B. U. Meet Tonight

It will be a desperate and determined lot of Harvard hockey players that will take the Arena ice tonight against Boston University. The Crimson players still have in mind the 3 to 0 defeat suffered last season against B. U., and tonight Harvard's full strength will be sent against the Terriers in an effort to square accounts.

The setback last season was the only black mark on an otherwise brilliant Harvard record. The Crimson had stepped through the Big Three competition to win the title, and also the mythical crown of Eastern collegiate hockey. Yet that one defeat was a sore spot with the Harvard players.

Harvard has two fine forward lines, while B. U. has three starting men who have been able to go a long way without relief. In Dick Scott and [illegible] Chase Harvard has two brilliant center men, yet these stars will have their work cut out to keep tabs on Jo[illegible] Lawless, the B. U. ace, in the same position.

Harvard's starting line probably will be comprised of [illegible] Tudor, Dick Scott and Izzy Zarakov, a far better scoring trio than the Gross-Chase-Hamlen three.

Both defenses have stood up against [illegible] attacks all season, [illegible]. Harvard is equipped with more defensive talent than B. U., [illegible] in these positions [illegible].

In order to [illegible] more pep to the occasion the Boston University band of 40 pieces, in addition to a large attendance of B. U. students, will be on hand to provide support and zip for the Terriers.

The Biggest Moment in My Biggest Fight

By GEORGES CARPENTIER

Of the 90,000 persons who crowded Boyle's Thirty Acres the day I fought Jack Dempsey hardly one would fail to say that the most brilliant moment of my life must have come when I staggered that great champion with a right swing in the second round. It was a big moment, but not the biggest.

That moment came a dozen years ago, in 1914, when I was a kid of 19, who weighed 166 pounds. I was fighting the giant American negro, Joe Jeannette.

Joe was conceded to be one of the really great heavyweights of the time. He outweighed me by twenty-five pounds, was fast and strong and a terrific hitter. Had the opportunity been placed in his way he might very easily have become the champion of the world.

EVERY CLASS TITLE.

Though I [illegible] been boxing since I was 14 years old, and [illegible] title in every [illegible] from bantamweight to [illegible]. I was not conceded [illegible] black man [illegible]. And, as I [illegible] at his great [illegible] ebony skin, I had more than a small measure of doubt myself.

The gong [illegible] round I leaped from my [illegible] and rushed at Jeannette. He was [illegible] and rather [illegible] sampled the [illegible] of Sam Langford, [illegible] without any [illegible].

I feinted [illegible] guard away and [illegible] the right [illegible] and down he went, [illegible] chin.

GREATEST THRILL.

That was the moment I rank above all others. I, the little Frenchman, had done what [illegible] fighters had [illegible]. And, as I stood there [illegible] thousands of [illegible] filled Luna Park [illegible] I experienced a thrill that has never come to me before or since.

True, he took the count of nine and scrambled to his feet again. True, I dropped him for the [illegible] count again in the ninth [illegible] fine frenzy of joy [illegible] to the heart was gone never to [illegible] again.

Mandell Offered $30,000 for Bout

Detroit, Jan. 26.—Arthur Clam[illegible], boxing promoter, today offered Sammy Mandell, lightweight champion of the world, a guarantee of $30,000 with a privilege of 37½ per cent of the gate receipts to defend his title here against Phil McGraw, Detroit lightweight.

Clamago would hold the fight in the open air on Decoration Day, May 30, 1927.

Archie Stillman, manager of the Detroit battler, has accepted 12½ per cent of the gate for his end.

SHOOTING LIONS EASIER THAN SLAPPING TIGERS

The consensus of opinion seems to be that nobody can see a football game in Cambridge, Mass., or Princeton, N. J., from the back of an elephant in the African jungle. Wynant Hubbard elected to pick on games played from '21 to '25, when Wynant was chasing the wild lion along his spoor to his lair, or whatever they call the apartments of the king of the jungle.

Nick Flatley

Jack Maher, who was hurt in the course of the Hubbard article, says that the author was unqualified to write it. Eddie Mahan, hero of the days of Crimson glory, comes out in defense of Bill Roper, Princeton coach. And there have been many stories about the things that the Tigers tried to do to Eddie.

The boys say this and that, and in the end admit that a blast against the Tigers was ill advised and in very poor form. Young Hubbard admits that he's going back to the jungle in a month or so, and, therefore, doesn't care.

He says he was picked to be the goat, and it's very apparent that the pickers were correct. The whole business is unfortunate. Harvard and Princeton had broken relations and were set to go their various ways. The trouble had been buried. Now it's perched right where the calcium hits, and despite all the deploring it will stay there for quite a while.

When the president of a great college like Harvard tries to have a magazine article killed, that article means a lot. President Lowell has always avoided public discussions. He has been an educator, carried along by the traditions of his job.

He hasn't paid overmuch attention to football and its worries. He realized years ago that there wasn't much connection between college sports and college studies. He had to hop into this argument. It was forced on him. If his reaction wrecks the game at Cambridge, young Mister Hubbard will have to retire farther than the African jungle to escape the condemnation that would result.

SOMETHING MIGHT BE WRITTEN ABOUT A FOOTBALL GOAT GETTING A THOUSAND BUCKS.

Or, as Al Nickerson chirps: What with the banked corners, I do not see how a six-day race could be on the level.

REAL FANS REMEMBER THIS BIG LEAGUE WONDER OF OLDEN TIMES

Dan Brouthers, Top-Notcher Many Years Ago, Was a Real Ball Player

STILL IN THE GAME BUT GETTING OLD

"I ran across "Dan Brouthers," out at the Polo Grounds in New York recently—the man fans declared was the greatest ball player of his time in the big leagues. On the right is his picture in the togs they wore then—the pose newspapers printed and fans raved over in the old days. Dan is Night Superintendent at the Polo Grounds nowadays—He can't get away from the game—just loves to sit and watch the big league youngsters of today, like a grandad loves to watch his grandchildren at play. "Dan" the last time I saw him was suffering with stiffness in his knees and had tried everything but they wouldn't limber up like they should so I asked him what he'd done. He was walking around so spry and frisky like and this is what baseball's grand old man said.

"I once suffered a lot with my knees and stiff joints, but I got to rubbing myself with Mike Martin's Liniment—it's the kind the ball players use nowadays—Mike Martin is the trainer of Washington Ball Club, you know, and by jingo the first application brought relief and after a few more I was entirely cured. It sure beats the old time liniments and is the best on the market today."

Among the oldtime fans who read this and remember "Dan" there may be some who likewise aren't so limber and free of lameness, stiffness, aches, pains, rheumatism, etc., as they used to be and if so—here's his tip—Get a bottle of Mike Martin's Liniment for a dollar at the drug store or send Mike Martin a dollar bill with name and address for a bottle parcels post—Mike's address is Care Washington Ball Club, Brentwood, Md.

HUBBARD IS READY TO TESTIFY

Will Name Harvard Men Who Persuaded Him to Be Goat

Jan. 26 (I.N.S.).—Wynant D. Hubbard, former Harvard tackle whose article entitled "Dirty Football" openly charged Princeton with foul tactics, not only continued to stick by his story today, but declared that he expected staunch support to materialize from a group of Harvard men who had contributed some of the material for the disputed article. Hubbard said these men would come into the open with a public substantiation of his story whenever necessary.

"They have given me written reports of what they observed in Harvard-Princeton football games and even if they don't back me up publicly because of the storm that has been raised, I can fall back on those reports as substantiation of my article," Hubbard declared.

"However, I have every confidence of support from these men. Just at present, I don't mind being the 'goat' as I fully expected to be attacked from all sides.

"I merely wish to re-iterate that I wrote the story in order to present what I believed to be the motivating factor behind the Harvard-Princeton break. There had been entirely too little plain talking and entirely too much whispering behind the hand.

The article was not intended as an attack on Princeton men, many of whom I number among my friends. It was a criticism on the conduct of football at Princeton."

TUNNEY PLANS EUROPEAN TOUR

By DAVIS J. WALSH.

New York, Jan. 26.—Prominent Americans who will sail for abroad early this Summer are the captain of the Leviathan and James Joseph Tunney, the well-known heavyweight champion. The latter informed the writer today that he is seriously considering offers for a theatrical and exhibition tour of Germany, England and France, and is so enamored of the idea that he is dispatching his barrister, Dudley Field Malone, to the scene to discover what he may.

Malone will sail on Saturday and he may be relied upon to discover all, including the uncharted box office.

The champion's tentative plans were outlined to me in some detail just before he left today on another back haul through the West. This is done by tracking the wild and untrameled buck to the house manager's safe and claiming for your ——

Anyhow, the end of March will bring the closed season. His rather sketchy plans at this immature moment call for him to leave for abroad in April and return in June, at which juncture it is expected it will be cauliflower time in Pugilistica.

Tunney will begin active training then for the defense of his title against the accepted challenger and then any who thinks he won't be "ready" for the big moment has a frayed cuff in his family closet.

"I'm not three pounds overweight right now," Tunney declared. "I weigh 190 to an ounce and, if the demand was made, I could enter the ring within four weeks fit and ready to fight as well as ever I did. But I'm taking no chances.

"Soon after the first week in June I will leave for the woods with four or five sparring partners and, by easy stages, I will work my way to perfection in physical condition."

QUEBEC HOCKEY TEAM TO PRACTICE AT ARENA

The Quebec team will come to Boston today and put in four days of intensive practice at the Arena for its Saturday league feature here with the Boston Tigers. The Quebec is making this American invasion with its full squad of 12 men.

LA BARBA TO QUIT RING

are a bad thing for football and for sport in general.

"I do not believe anybody should be too critical of happenings on the gridiron. Football brings into effect man to man conflict. At times players lose their tempers and do things which they later regret. I think the little roughnesses of the gridiron should be forgotten once the final whistle blows."

Started Boxing at 14

Asked to tell something of his early boxing career, La Barba replied.

"I was fourteen years of age when I first started to box. I had a brother who was a professional boxer. He performed in the ring under the name of Kid Frenchie and battled in the bantamweight division.

"I owe all of my success as a boxer to George Blake, who conducted an amateur club on the coast. He gave me my start and taught me the fine points of the game. You can see that I have never been punched around much as I don't carry a single mark of a boxing bout."

COHEN'S PUNCH MENACE TO AL MELLO

Meyer Cohen of Holyoke, holder of the New England welterweight title, is anxious to prove to the fight fans of Eastern Massachusetts that he is the greatest welterweight in New England. On the night of February 7, at the new Boston Arena, the Jewish welterweight will defend his title in a 10-round bout with Al Mello, Lowell's Portuguese-American fighter, under the direction of the Suffolk A. A.

For the past few years, Cohen has been appearing in the largest fight centres in the country, against the best welterweights that the sport of boxing boasts. In the past 12 months, he has climbed to the top with a succession of ring victories of many topnotchers. He has proved equally successful against boxers and punchers.

Lew Tendler, a hard hitting southpaw who resembles Mello a great deal, fell before the punching power of Cohen in a bout at Hartford last Summer. Sergeant Sammy Baker, another hard hitter, could not stand before Cohen's withering fire. And then there were George Levine and George Kid Lee, a pair of welters who boast of skillfulness rather than punching power. Cohen defeated the pair of them handily, winning the New England welterweight title from Lee.

Mello has never received a real set-back in the ring, since becoming a professional. His ability as a boxer, his propensity as a puncher, and his gameness have carried him from the preliminary ranks to a place near the top of the welterweight class. Tex Rickard, nationally known figure in boxing circles, has ranked Mello as sixth greatest welterweight in the world. The Lowell lad, who will celebrate his twenty-first birthday in a week, is well on the high-road of success. He is loking forward to wearing a world's title within six months.

Cohen is confident that he will give Mello his first real setback in the ring. He is training every day in Holyoke, and Holyoke will send hundreds to Boston for the bout. Some months ago it was commonly said that the New Boston Arena was too big for boxing shows and that it could never be made to pay.

Tom Goodwin, local promoter, has proved in his last two shows that the Arena would pay. The Finnegan-Suggs and Mello-Zivic bouts have drawn a total of $55,000. It is confidently expected, judging by the early advance sale.

Records May Go at Dog Derby

The Pas, Man., Jan. 26 (A.P.).—Competitors in the Pas annual dog derby had a new world's mark on the record books to try to better in the second heat today of the North Country's picturesque sport. Emil St. Goddard, ace of the Northern dog team drivers, won the first heat of 40 miles in 3 hours and 35 minutes. He made the first 25 miles in 2:22:30, which is 11 minutes and 4 seconds better than the world mark he established last year.

St. Goddard, who is only 20 years old, finished the first round more than 12 minutes ahead of his nearest rival, Earl Bridges, and was confident he could retain this margin in today's and tomorrow's 40 mile races. Other contestants are Leo St. Goddard, 19-year-old brother of Emil; H. O. Lensky and Shorty Russick.

GOLF NOTES

By BILL GRIMES

DUE to the fact that the Committee of Metropolitan Affairs has not held an executive meeting, they have not reported on Bill 224, which has to do with the appropriation of $75,000 for the construction of a public golf course at Fowl Meadows. The delay should work out to the advantage of the bill, for the movement in favor of another public golf course is growing rapidly, and soon sufficient pressure will be brought to bear to firmly convince this committee that Fowl Meadows is desired by the citizens of Greater Boston.

Although L. B. Folsom, who is chairman of the golf committee, refuses to make known the changes, the Woodland Golf Club will be rearranged again this season. Flynn and Toomey, golf architects from Philadelphia, who are constructing the new nine holes at the Country Club, will be in charge of the Woodland job, but nothing definite will be made public until the middle of March.

According to a rumor about town, Dan Horan, who is known as the Massachusetts State handicapper, has suffered a nervous breakdown. Dan has been under a heavy strain for the past two years, operating his golf business, running tournaments and worrying over sickness in his family. He was advised to take a long rest last Summer, but was unable to comply with his doctor's wishes and is now paying the penalty.

Maurice McCarthy, son of the well known Long Island, N. Y., professional, is a youngster who will bear watching. McCarthy in nineteen years old and a fine all-around athlete at Eramus Hall in Brooklyn. Young McCarthy has taken up golf and has turned in some fine scores as his record at the Delaware Water Gap, when he finished third to Walter Hagen and Johnny Farrell in an open tournament last Summer will show.

Maurice McCarthy, Sr., is one of the real old timers in the game. He was a golf professional years and years ago, but he gave up the game and for seventeen years was a member of the New York fire department. A few years ago he turned once again to golf. He is now located at Flushing, Long Island.

George Aulbach is loud in his praise of Jimmy Conway, the Massachusetts Junior champion. The Arlmont professional predicts that if Conway sticks to the game he will acquire the fame that has come to Francis Ouimet, Jess Guilford and Freddie Wright. By eliminating a slight sway, which crops up at times, Aulbach states that Conway's form would be perfect.

The Scarboro Golf Club will open its doors to the women this season and if the newcomers are recognized by the Women's Golf Association of Boston, interest will be stimulated among the Franklin Park fair sex.

Tom Dean, the professional of the Myopia Hunt Club, is in the fish business this Winter. According to Jack Shea, of Kernwood, the new venture is flourishing and he is thinking of acquiring a couple of more fishing lines and another ice pick.

Use for Waste Gas

MUCH of the heat wasted in gas cooking can be saved and used again by means of an ingenious device recently perfected. It diverts excess heat from one set of burners to another part of the stove, under other utensils.

Waffle-Making Is Simplicity Itself

By MARTHA LEE

"OH, Martha mine," wails a bride from Newburyport "tell me what's the matter with my brand new electric waffle iron? I'd throw it in the ash can for a nickel. Three times I've mixed your waffle batter and it's looked oh, so good and fulffy! But when it comes to the baking, woe is me! That batter sticks to the iron tighter than a postage stamp Then I almost wear holes in the aluminum to scrape it clean and start all over again with the same results. What CAN be the matter?"

Waffles are one of the most frequent subjects of complaint choruses There should be a law that would compel every manufacturer of waffle irons to print, in large red type a complete set of do's and don't's for every waffle iron made Once the waffle iron is "broken in," the directions could be thrown away, for waffle-making is really simplicity itself.

The new waffle iron, however, is temperamental and requires diplomatic handling. An electric aluminum waffle iron should not require greasing, although some people advocate a light oiling before the first heating. If this is practiced at all however, it should be only the once

My waffle iron has never been contaminated with oil or grease of any kind and never has a waffle stuck to its fair surface yet. I think the secret's in the proper heating of the iron. If you will place a piece of white paper between the grids of your waffle iron and wait until it is a rich, dark brown, the chances are your waffles will never stick Too cool irons are almost invariably the cause of failures.

A gas waffle iron of cast iron requires generous oiling or buttering each time before the batter is placed in it. Heat one side thoroughly, then the other. Grease well with an oiled or buttered brush Then place a tablespoon of batter near the center, shut the cover and turn immediately on the other side.

If the iron is hot enough, it will bake almost as fast as it can be turned. An aluminum gas waffle iron does not need oiling

MARTHA'S WAFFLES—Separate the whites and yolks of 2 eggs Add to the yolks 1 tablespoon of sugar, half a teaspoon of salt and 1 cup of milk. Sift together 1¾ cups of pastry flour with 4 level teaspoons of baking powder. Add this to the first mixture. Add a teaspoon of vanilla, and if you are going to make your waffles on an electric iron, a quarter cup of melted butter.

Less shortening (1 large tablespoon) is needed for waffles made on a cast-iron waffle iron. Last of all gently stir in the stiffly beaten egg whites. Put from 1½ to 2 big tablespoons of batter in the center of your waffle iron, shut down the cover, and bake to a golden brown Serve instantly

Creamed ham, fried or creamed chicken, lobster or salmon are all popular accompaniments of waffles I've even been advised to serve them with brown gravy and roast beef instead of Yorkshire Pudding but I haven't made this experiment yet

What I have done, however, is to serve them short-cake fashion with crushed Hawaiian pineapple between the layers and on top and I've doubled the amount of butter in them and served them as a dessert sandwiched over a slice of ice cream.

Chocolate waffles are delicious made by adding two squares of melted chocolate to the foundation recipe Or you might try adding a cup of strained, canned blueberries to the batter and serve the waffles as a pudding with hot sweetened stewed blueberries as a sauce

Rice waffles are made by substituting 1 cup of cooked rice for ½ cup of the flour Almost any left over cereal may be used up in the same way

A specially crisp waffle is made by replacing 1 cup of the flour with 1 cupful of stale, but not dry, bread crumbs Soak the crumbs in [illegible] over [illegible], [illegible] go ahead with the recipe.

A cake waffle should prove a delightful surprise for your family A simple two-egg cake is good for this purpose To make this, cream together one-quarter cup butter and 1 cup sugar. Add two beaten eggs, two cups pastry flour, one-half teaspoon of salt, two teaspoons of baking powder, three-quarters cup of hot milk and 1 teaspoon of lemon extract.

Before making cake waffles, go over the waffle iron with cold water and clean brush and do not dry There may be some peeling off of the crust of the cake waffles, but this is easily removed with a steel bristled brush, which is a great aid in keeping any waffle iron in good condition No waffle iron should ever be washed

Butter for waffles should be melted. Try it mixed with honey

Faithfully yours,
MARTHA LEE

SOME BUSINESS MEN GET THE SECRETARY ON THEIR MINDS

SILKEN KNEES beneath a desk, BARE ARMS above [illegible] this, an OPEN THROAT, a PAINTED face HOW business Men must love it

If our great GRANDMOTHERS had been told that Girls would wear SKIRTS above their KNEES to BUSINESS, and that it would go on JUST THE SAME they would NEVER have BELIEVED it.

And PERHAPS they would have been RIGHT. BUSINESS goes on, of course, but perhaps NOT QUITE the SAME. It must be MUCH HARDER these days.

SOME MEN give their whole HEART and mind to BUSINESS, but OTHERS, it seems, get the SECRETARY on their MINDS and then CANNOT put Even their HEART in their WORK. Poor men!

Peanut Butter Is a Staple Food

By Charles A. L. Reed, M. D.

YOU may have eaten peanut butter, in which event you [illegible] liked it or [illegible].

[illegible]

Peanut butter [illegible] a [illegible] food for [illegible] [illegible] fats and in vitamin A, but in [illegible] con[illegible] starches (carbohydrates) and protein. This combination makes it one of the most comprehensively valuable of all recent additions to our food resources.

Peanut butter contains only the ground kernels of [illegible] peanuts with the addition of one to four per cent of salt The high-grade peanut retains its sweetness and flavor many months in an airtight package Large quantities are used in the manufacture of [illegible] candy and bakery products but its chief use is probably in the home

I have frequently tried to make [illegible] processes by [illegible] foodstuffs and [illegible] water, are produced. My object has been to [illegible] intelligently to [illegible] and [illegible] for the [illegible] of your health.

Your Department of Agriculture at Washington has fortunately placed us in possession of this information with respect to peanut butter.

[illegible] to a smooth fine flavored peanut butter a blend of the Spanish and Virginia types is employed. Virginia peanuts alone make a butter that is too dry, and a butter made from Spanish alone is too oily.

There is no uniformity in the preparations used of the two varieties as some manufacturers prefer an oily butter and others prefer a dry butter.

Care is taken that peanuts which are used in the manufacture of peanut butter are first cleaned of foreign matter, and then are placed in the split blanchers, where the seed germs and thin skins are removed. The two varieties of peanuts are mixed in the desired proportion before being fed into the hopper of the mill for grinding or crushing into butter

The salting is important An automatic salt feeder allows a definite proportion of salt to be fed into the mill along with the peanut kernels. The container for the butter is usually filled directly from the discharge spout of the crushing mill.

Father Who Strayed From Home

By WINIFRED BLACK

THERE he was, dead in bed—the man about town.

Dead and alone in his handsome rooms, with all the gorgeous furniture.

And the fruit in the silver dish was decayed and mildewed, and the roses in the great rose jar were withered and faded—for the man had been dead for a week or ten days, and nobody had been near him in all that time.

And when they found him there was a letter in his hand, and the letter was from his little daughter, asking him to come home, and they traced the letter and found that the man about town was not a bachelor at all.

He was a man with a comfortable home in the suburbs, and a comfortable income, and a nice little family

But he did not fancy life in the suburbs and he didn't seem to care much for his family. So he came to the city, and took handsome rooms in a bachelor apartment, and lived what he hopefully called, "the gay life."

He gave suppers to dancers and ladies of the chorus, and "men about town."

He sent flowers to pretty ladies who didn't care a snap of their fingers for him He bought candy for little flappers who flattered him to his face, and made fun of him behind his back.

He knew every head waiter in town by his first name, and he was proud of the fact. He went to all of the first nights at the theatre, and it was a great thrill to him to have the head usher recognize him and call him by name.

Oh, he had a gay time in the gay city! Then he was tired and not so well, and he couldn't give any more dinners. Somehow he didn't want to go to the theatres, and nobody came to see him, and nobody cared whether he lived or died. Somehow his little daughter in the suburbs discovered where he was, and wrote him a funny little letter, full of a funny little pathetic dignity. She asked him to come home and stay, because, she said, she hated to tell the other girls at school that she didn't know where her father was.

And they found him with that letter in his hand. I wonder if it all came over him all at once. The utter futility and the folly and the emptiness of his life.

Well, well, the little girl won't have to make excuses now when the girls ask her about her father, and why he never comes to see her at the boarding school.

I wonder if she will be comforted when she thinks of that.

Household Hints

Gas globes often become so discolored that ordinary washing fails to restore their brightness. If they are treated as follows a distinct improvement will be noticed: Give them a good soaking in hot water. Afterwards scrub hard in lukewarm water to which has been added a teaspoonful of ammonia. Rinse in clean water, and allow to drain till dry.

Fruit stains can be quickly removed from garments if they are rubbed over with camphor before washing.

Thrilling Romance of Youth in Boston

CHAPTER XLIX.

HONEY LOU went away from the house feeling that in some way Angela had tricked her. She just couldn't believe that Angela had forgotten how she had begged her to go with her or Donegal on that dreadful day in March.

"How could she?" she asked herself, dragging herself heavily up the stairs of the flat.

She was sitting before the mirror of her dressing table, staring at her white unhappy face in the glass, when Mary opened the door of the room.

"Miss Allen's here to see you," she said, and Honey Lou jumped.

Angela was in the sunroom, holding up her sweet pure face to the lovebirds in the cage. "Do you hate to be shut up in that cage, poor little things?" she was asking them in he cooing voice when Honey Lou came into the room.

Her eyes were big and soft and shining with tears as she turned them in her cooing voice when she said, and laid one of her white hands on Honey Lou's shoulder, "why should we quarrel like this? You know I'm awfully fond of you, my dear. I'd do anything in the world for you except tell a lie, Honey Lou."

Honey Lou shrugged her shoulders. "I don't want you to tell a lie for me," she said bluntly. "All I want you to do is to tell Jack that I didn't want to go on that trip that day. That's the truth—and you know it, Angela Allen!"

Angela looked down at the toe of her black velvet slipper. "What good would it do if I did take all the blame on my own shoulders?" she asked. "It wouldn't make him feel any more loving toward you, Honey Lou. If he hasn't spoken to you for two months, I should think it would dawn on you that he's through with you—I can't see why you stay on here, where he plainly doesn't want you."

"Oh——" Honey Lou's hands went to her throat that seemed to be tight and hot, all at once. She felt as if her heart were going that very minute to break with the burden it had been carrying for so many weeks.

"I saw him eating dinner with his father and mother last night, from the window of our dining room," Angela's low silky voice went on, "and he didn't seem at all worried or sad, Honey Lou. He's not like you are—you're crushed by this whole thing, and if I were you I'd get away from it all. I'd go back to my mother."

When she had gone, Honey Lou [illegible] very still, thinking over the [illegible] she had said.

"[illegible] mother is on the telephone, [illegible] Wallack." Mary's cheerful [illegible] voice roused her.

"[illegible]ey Lou, is anything the matter?" Mrs. Huntley asked.

"Why, mother, what makes you [illegible]"

"Oh, nothing, only I haven't been [illegible] to get you off my mind all [illegible]noon," her mother answered. "[illegible] had the funniest feeling about [illegible]. I just felt as if something was wrong—as if you needed me——"

"I do! oh, mother, I do!" And suddenly Honey Lou was sobbing into the little round black mouthpiece of the telephone. She clanged the receiver down on its hook, and fairly ran out of the flat. A taxi took her to her old home.

The tiny flat on Green street, Jamaica Plain, had never seemed so much like home to Honey Lou as it did on that May afternoon. Everything about it was precious and satisfying—even the familiar odor of vegetable soup that filled the rooms when Honey Lou opened the door.

Mrs. Huntley was waiting for her in her big easy chair beside the tall yellow lamp. She did not speak, when Honey Lou dropped down at her knees and buried her swollen tear-stained face in her white crackling apron.

She only stroked and patted the brown head.

Patiently she waited for the storm to pass.

"Mother, how did you know I wanted you?" she asked in a strangled voice.

Mrs. Huntley shrugged her plump motherly-looking shoulders, and smiled a bit tremulously. "Oh, mothers have a way of knowing things like that sometimes," she said. When you were a tiny baby, Honey Lou, and you cried in the night I always knew it. I was always a heavy sleeper, and thunder storms and lightning could never wake me. But if you or Margret turned over in bed I knew it instantly—any mother will tell you the same thing about her children. I reckon it's Nature, Honey Lou, or God."

Honey Lou hid her face again in the crackling white apron. "Mother," she said from the muffling folds, "Angela thinks I ought to leave Jack. She saw him in his father's house and she says he seems perfectly happy without me."

"And what right has Angela to advise you what to do?" her mother asked softly. "What does Angela know about it? Why, Honey Lou, I wouldn't dare to advise you to take a step like that, and I'm your own mother."

"What would you advise me to do?" Honey Lou asked.

"Well, it's hard to say. I wouldn't want to answer you without thinking it over," Mrs. Huntley slowly replied. "In a way I suppose it's sin to live with a man who doesn't love you, and in a way——"

"But Jack doesn't live with me! That's just the point!" Honey Lou cut in. "We're divorced just as much as we'll ever be divorced."

"Sshl' her mother put a warning finger to her lips. "Here come Margret and Steve, dearies. Steve's going to be here for supper. Do something for me, Honey Lou. Be a little off-hand with Steve tonight. He and Margret are getting along so beautifully, and you know how he feels about you. Don't come between them——"

But Honey Lou had no intention of even letting Steve see her swollen face and tear-stained puffy eyelids. She jammed her little red hat down over her ears and ran down the back steps, and home to the loneliness and emptiness of the place that once had held all the happiness on earth for her.

The Eternal Mystery

Men Know the Secrets of Sea and Air—but Not of Woman

Drawn By Dorothy Flack

EVER since this old world has been flying through space the mystery of woman has been the theme of endless songs and countless debates. And so far the mystery hasn't been solved.

Mere man has plumbed the mysteries of the air and the mysteries of the deepest seas. Daring aviators each day make a new record to add to the history of the world, deep sea divers find countless wonders and new worlds far below the restless bosom of Mother sea. But even the bravest of men have never solved the mysteries of Woman.

One knows her [illegible] and who can deny but that it is the elusive charm of mystery with which she surrounds herself that challenges and holds the interest and love of all with whom she comes in contact. And she's wise enough to realize that this is her chief asset.

"The Making of a Husband"; Ann Lisle's Serial

SO I couldn't say a word about Judy. I still have Ralph's devotion. And in the days that followed that began to be all I had.

For things went from bad to worse at Peter Stanley and Company. I found myself growing pale and wan and thin. I realised that winsome Judith Winston was losing all her lovely English color and glow. But I tried to shut my eyes to it.

"I have stripped myself of all except Peter Stanley and Company—and it won't go," I told myself bitterly. "I have even sold my standard of honor in putting my ten thousand into the firm instead of telling Mr. Fairbrother that my own business has been sold and that I have the money he loaned me with 'A L. Harrison and Co.' as unnamed security. I won't force Ralph away from me—when he doesn't want to go—when he doesn't know that he ought to want to go," I added bitterly in silent reverie.

And then I had a peremptory telephone call from Mr. Fairbrother's office asking me to come to his bank at once.

"He knows about the sale. He knows about my ten thousand dollars," I thought in a panic. "Does this mean—disgrace?"

I went to the Fairbrother bank in fear and trembling. I felt certain that Mr. Fairbrother had got wind of my sale of the "A. L. Harrison Company" to Betty Winston, and that he was going to call in the loan he had made me on the unnamed security which we both understood to be in equity in my firm.

It didn't seem likely that a banker would sentimentalize much about my putting the money I should have paid off to his organization into the Peter Stanley Company. So it was painfully obvious that I had come near putting myself into the class of the criminally negligent—if not into the criminal class.

With a horrible sense of weakness I went to Mr. Fairbrother's office, and I began stammering out my poor explanation hard upon his curt and businesslike greeting—so different from the pleasant friendliness with which he usually addressed me.

"I hope you won't think you have to be too hard on me," I murmured. "I'm not as bad as I look. I owe Loren Haldane so much, you know. I've thought of him and the fact that I must make good for Peter Stanley and his heirs."

"Are you making good for them?" Mr. Fairbrother asked severely.

"I need more and more money," I cried. "What I've been able to put in is only a drop in the bucket. Still I had to put it in and—hope for—more drops."

"Where did you think the drops would come from?" Mr. Fairbrother asked in a tone that seemed to be tinged with amusement.

This was odd and puzzled me exceedingly. I decided to make a clean breast of everything and take the defensive before he could assume the offensive.

"You gave me ten thousand," I recited. "Betty Winston bought out my interest in my own firm. That was another ten thousand. I suppose I should have met my obligation here with it. But it was such a windfall that it encouraged me to look for more. So I put that ten thousand also into the Stanley business. I trusted to luck that somehow I'd get the money to meet my obligation here before it fell due."

"It falls due in two months," said Mr. Fairbrother tersely. "Any idea how you're going to meet it?"

"Not yet——"

"Well, madame, I have," he told me in a tone that str[illegible] new [illegible] to my heart and undermined my [illegible]. "You should be [illegible] to know how," he reminded me.

"But I don't—and you say you do," I was bold enough to venture.

"Have you canvassed your list of friends and acquaintances for new backing?" he asked.

"I had no security to offer," I confessed.

"You had none to offer me."

"There was my own firm—[illegible] I owned the larger share of its stock."

"Pretty poor security when you weren't doing a thing to make your firm a going concern."

If he would only stop [illegible] cat and mouse game and tell me the worst! That was what I [illegible], but what I said was:

"You didn't name any secu[illegible] when you came to the rescue."

"Did you think I was the [illegible] who would trust you?" he demanded.

"I tried others. But they were either tied up in their own investments—or going for trips to the Orient—or inclined to mix my business life with my personal affairs and their disapproval of certain steps I am failing to take—" I stammered.

"Suppose I told you that one—friend had such implicit confidence in you that he is ready to stand by your venture to the tune of $50,000, and that the bank is going to operate as his agent and give you any part of that $50,00, or all of it, as you deem best?" Mr. Fairbrother asked in the quizzical tone that was coloring the interview, and giving me a [illegible] of not knowing where [illegible] and bank [illegible] operate [illegible] my course in the matter of the $10 [illegible]

"Fifty thousand dollars!" I said [illegible]. "Who would lend me that. Must you—make fun of me? Can't we get down to facts?"

"We are down to facts," said Mr. Fairbrother quietly. "I am authorized to pay you any part of $50,000 you need for the safe conduct of the [illegible] Stanley [illegible] success toward which you appear to be heading it. I am authorized to pay you part or all today."

"Fifty thousand dollars! Today! That would see me through. I know it. It would save Pe[illegible]nley & Co.," I gasped. "You cannot mean it, though."

"I do mean it, nevertheless," said Mr. Fairbrother, drawing his big check book toward him.

"Who would lend me such a sum?" I whispered hoarsely. "Who?"

"The name of your sponsor is the one thing I am not privileged to reveal to you," Mr. Fairbrother said with his pen poised in air.

The Correct Thing in Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Is it proper for a girl to hold a man's hat in a theatre?

PUZZLED BETTY.

NO, it isn't proper, Betty, because it isn't sensible. Any he-man would be embarrassed by this "attention," or at least, he should be. The girl who makes a man feel that he needs her help in such an attention is very unwise. A man wants to take care of his own hat, and he should, of course. Watch the kind of girl who takes it upon herself to care for a man's hat, and you will see that it is the badly bred girl, the socially unsure girl. It is never the well bred girl, the girl of dignity, the girl of poise. I can see no earthly reason why a man would not take care of his own hat unless he were physically incapacitated, and then the question comes under the heading of humanity, kindness, rather than of formal etiquette.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

What is the proper way to seat guests at dinner or supper, husband and wife together, and a girl and her fiance together, or separated from each other?

C.

WHEN we are planning the seating arrangement for a dinner or supper, it is the rule that husband and wife should not be seated next to each other.

A Mary [illegible] urged them to give up their flat and come to Mooreland for the hot Summer months.

"You can have your old room and the little one back of it for your things," Mary coaxed, with an anxious look. Gay was thinner now and her skin had the clear whiteness of [illegible] the yard. "Well, now, you'd come back to us, dear? Stanley would like the country I'm sure."

But Gay couldn't bear the thought of leaving her tiny home. Makeshift it was in many ways, with sun only in the morning and none too airy. But it belonged to her and Stan—to their first days together—and she loved it unreasonably.

Besides, [illegible] sometimes worried about the husky young fellow she had married—refused to see the bulging muscles that were beginning to develop over his arms and shoulders—feared commuting would be a hardship to him.

"We'll come for week-ends, Mary darling. And some day we'll be here for good. Buy a place down the road. Oh—" she turned to Stan "wouldn't you like it? Better than anything you can think of?"

"Would I! Just keep it in mind young-un. Out here before you know, [illegible]"

He spoke half jesting, but from that minute Gay began to look forward to the day when they might leave the city for the hills and fields and winding road. [illegible] helped her over the small worries that came her way. She even opened a bank account; managed to put away a dollar or two [illegible] a while as a fund toward the place in the country.

In the meantime she determined to bring a summery look into the little flat. She took up the big rug from the living room and replaced it with two or three small, inexpensive rugs, first oiling and polishing the floor. Then she bought bright cretonne all roses and cool-looking leaves, and made slips for the furniture.

Stan patted the fender, grinning [illegible] "What do you say? Surprised?"

"Am I! Well—is it ours? Isn't it a new make? I never saw one just like that."

"Of course not! It's a synthetic car. Name is Patches. Patched up from eleven different scrapped automobiles. A good ol' thing though. I ought to know."

"[illegible] You never made it yourself? Oh, you wonderful—wonderful—" And right there on the street she had to kiss him, dancing up and down and clapping her hands.

"Hurry, now; we'll eat fast so we can go for a ride. Well, if you aren't the surprisingest!" Looking her adoration.

He said, "That's nothing," and waved airily, even while he swaggered.

The janitor allowed them to park Patches in a vacant lot behind the flat building when it wasn't in use. How to Have Soft, Pretty White Hands

Many women will undoubtedly be glad to know how they may have beautiful white, soft, pretty hands regardless of the work they have to do. The secret is in rubbing a little Ice-Mint into the hands occasionally, preferably just before retiring at night. In the morning you will be agreeably surprised at the pleasant transformation that has been wrought by even a single application. Ice-Mint is made from a Japanese product that is simply marvelous for its beautifying properties whether used on the hands or face. Regardless of what kind of work a woman does she should have pretty hands, as they are really the true marks of refinement. A few applications of Ice-Mint will actually make any woman proud of her hands and skin. It costs little and is sold and recommended by good druggists everywhere.

How can some women save money and still serve dainty, delicious, satisfying dishes? Full appetizing flavor in cheaper foods can be retained by proper cooking. The Institute article tells you how—in February

MEDBURY SAYS---

By JOHN P. MEDBURY

THIS has been such an unusually cold Winter that hundreds of doctors are prescribing whiskey to keep their patients warm. A quart of Scotch is equal to a ton of coal, and you don't have to bother with any ashes.

GIN also makes wonderful fuel and every mouth is an open fireplace.

ONE guy was so chilly the other evening that it cost $95 to thaw him out.

HE didn't know when to stop. He kept on getting warm for next Winter.

HE drank enough fuel to heat Mechanics Building.

HIS wife caught him drinking a pitcher of ice water. He said he was trying to bring on another cold wave.

EVERY family can't afford to buy liquor. One woman nearly froze to death until her husband got a fever.

HIS temperature kept the house warm.

SHE'S trying to keep him sick until Spring.

THEY'RE very poor people. The son used to pin a beard on the hot water bag and wear it for a raccoon coat.

THE authorities finally took it away from him. They claimed he shot it without a permit.

A ROXBURY family was so cold the other evening that they had to clap hands to keep warm. The man next door was an actor, and kept taking bows all night.

HE finally called the police to make them stop applauding so that he could get some sleep.

DAILY SHORT STORY

-:- -:-

A MODERN MAHOMET

By Bertha R. McDonald

HE'S gone and he says he'll never come back until I send for him. Can any self-respecting girl do that?" Peggy Newcomb lamented.

"Not just that," Sybil returned, with a furtive glance at her younger sister, "but isn't there a story about Mahomet or somebody going to a mountain or something, because the mountain couldn't come to him?"

"How can I be Mahomet when I don't know where my mountain's gone?" Peggy fretted. "He may be in Paris, flirting with every coquette along the Bois Boulogne or in Japan, keeping company with the geisha girls for all I know."

"Yes, and he may be like Van Dyke's blue bird—just around the corner. Better keep your eyes open, darling!"

Within a week Peggy Newcomb had been persuaded to join her aunt on a sight seeing trip across the country. Aunt Phoebe disliked traveling alone. Peggy was her favorite niece and said favorite niece was ripe to accept anything that would take her mind off her recent quarrel with Craig Oliver and his subsequent disappearance.

During the daytime, in the weeks that followed, Peggy was almost too busy to give much reflective thought to her lover, but every night before she found it possible to woo the sleepy god into submission, she found her eyes wet with regretful tears over the fall of her Castle Romance. It had been such a silly, useless quarrel—merely a disagreement over the wording of a song, but one of those unfortunate entanglements which so often lead to other and more bitter variances of opinions.

"As if it really mattered," Peggy thought, when the scene was reenacted upon the stage of her mind. "I was right because I looked it up afterward, but dear, stubborn old Craig vowed he'd never sing it that way—he'd die first."

Not a word had reached any of Craig Oliver's friends as to where he was or what he was doing. All anybody knew was that he had announced late one afternoon that he was leaving town immediately.

During the whole of the cross country trip there was treasured in Peggy's heart a hope that some time, somehow, somewhere, she would run across Craig. What she would do, how she would act, if ever she did meet him, she was not prepared to say. She only knew that her heart never had ceased to ache and long for him and that she would be spared the ignominy of having eventually to ask him to come back, if they just happened to meet.

One night in Denver, while she was sitting in the dark, looking out of the window at the brilliantly lighted street below, she saw a strange familiar figure alight from a taxi and enter the hotel. Her heart began to throb and she felt her face flush. Aunt Phoebe was asleep. She wondered if she dared go down into the lobby. She was desperate with longing to know if Craig was registered there. Finally she wrote a postal to Sybil and made an errand to the lobby to post it.

"Do you mind if I look at the register a moment?" she asked the clerk hesitatingly.

The clerk did not mind a bit. He was young and Peggy was exquisitely easy on man's optic nerve so he begged her to help herself. Craig was not registered among the hotel guests. Finally, made bold through disappointment, she told of seeing someone whom she thought she knew come into the hotel and was informed that a young man had just left because they had no vacant rooms.

She almost perished with the where she imagined she had been Craig and that she might have attracted his attention if only she had called through the window. It would have been unmaidenly, no doubt, but their room was on the parlor floor and Peggy was fast reaching a point where she believed that all's fair in love and war.

Denver was not the only place wheer she imagined she had seen Craig. She found herself continually on the qui vive and the strain began to tell upon her. Finally Aunt Phoebe noticed it.

"Mercy, child!" she exclaimed one day, when Peggy went to bed with a severe headache. "I do hope you're not going to take down! Isn't there something I can do for you?"

Peggy knew that her ailment was beyond the power of her kind aunt's aid. She felt that Providence alone could lead her to the hidden goal and if the task wasn't accomplished soon, well, she'd just go mad, she told herself.

In San Francisco she became so despondent that she stayed in the hotel while Aunt Phoebe "took in" the sights.

After an hour's thinking, she decided to walk up and down the corridor in the hope of relief.

As she was passing the open door of the room next to their own, she was sure she heard a soft whistle. She stopped to listen. The familiar air touched a hidden spring and the tears began to sting her eyelids. It was the melody of the song that had been the cause of all her trouble and sorrow. Presently the whistle became a human voice —a voice she could not mistake and it was singing softly, tenderly: "Honest and truly, I love but you; No one has taken your place in my heart."

A—h! It was Craig—Her Craig! And he was singing the darling old song her way! Propriety, convention, nothing could have stopped her then. She called out in bewilderment, "Craig! Oh, Craig!" and the next moment he folded her close to his heart.

"It was generous of you to sing it my way after all, Craig dear," Peggy told him.

"But you—see, I never expected you to hear me and I'm still waiting for you to ask me to come back, you know," he answered teasingly.

"I don't need to. I'm Mahomet and you're the mountain—I've come to you! Sybil suggested it. She also told me that you and incidentally my happiness, might be like Van Dyke's blue bird—just around the corner. How long have you had that room, Craig?"

"Oh, a few hours. Guess I might as well own up—I took it because I learned from the clerk that Miss Phoebe Newcomb and niece had the one next to it."

Try to speek correck wen you speek, then, sed Pa. If it hadent been for me, Bobbie wud think by this time that the Peer Amids were in Asia. Ha, Ha sed Pa.

You bet Ma was pritty mad, if thare is anything gits Ma huffey, it is to haf Pa tell her she is rong about sumthing. I suppose that is beekaus Pa is rong so offen hisself.

Well, sed Pa, let us forgit the Peer Amids & Speek for a few mominte about the Alps, wich I suppose you think are lokated sumwares in France, sed Pa.

I know perfeckly well ware the Alps are, sed Ma, thay are in Swizerland, sed Ma, on the other side of Italy, sed Ma. Beeyond the Alps lies Italy, sed Ma, I lerned that in skool.

Ware are the Cats Kills mountings? sed Pa.

Is this a joggrafy lesson, sed Ma kind of hauty. You will keep on until my pashuents is wore out, sed Ma, and sum day I will relapse, sed Ma.

You meen Colapse, sed Pa, & there is no dainger of that, either. You are gitting yunger and moar charming as the yeers go by wife, sed Pa. You will be yung & fare wen I am old & C-Nile, sed Pa. I doant know what that is, C-Nile, but it must be sumthing that goes with old.

Do you reelly think I will stay yung and butiful? sed Ma. She wasent mad no moar, she was smileling.

I aint very old or wise but I know one (1) thing & that is if you want a lady or a woman or a gurl to smile jest tell them they are yung & butiful. Thay will B-leeve you if thay haf cross eyes & a hare lip.

WHO can remember the 'sweet old-fashioned husband," who used to get sore fingers and a martyr complex hooking his wife's dresses up the back?

It isn't the woman who suits him, nor the woman who understands him, nor the woman who adores him that leads a man to the altar—but the one who happens to be near enough to twine herself around his heart, in one of those weak, unguarded moments when he is feeling sorry for himself.

* * *

Just about now, the woman whose husband gave her a fur coat for Christmas is wondering how she is going to get him excited about a Palm Beach bathing suit, and an important sunshade.

Man's "Indian Summer" is from forty-eight to fifty-five—and such is its magic that leads the bachelor to matrimony, the married man to divorce, the fat man to banting, the good man to folly, and the foolish man into breach-of-promise suits.

* * *

When a man marries a woman for her money, he soon begins to regard her kisses as an "income tax" and to look around for a few "exemptions."

After a woman has been married for ten long years to a "good provider," who reads the stock reports at breakfast and goes to sleep after dinner, she sometimes catches herself secretly longing for a romantic spendthrift, who will tell her a few beautiful lies, bring her a few foolish gifts, and afford her the excitement of wondering where he is nights.

The modern girl tries everything and searches everywhere for a "thrill"—but the only place to look for thrills, dear heart, is inside yourself!

To Make Pine Cough Syrup at Home

Has no equal for prompt results. Takes but a moment to make. Saves about $2.

Pine is used in nearly all prescriptions and remedies for coughs. The reason is that pine has a remarkable effect in soothing and healing the membranes of the throat and chest.

Pine cough syrups are made of pine and syrup. The "syrup" is usually plain sugar syrup.

To make the best pine cough remedy, put 2½ ounces of Pinex in a pint bottle, and fill up with home-made sugar syrup or clarified honey. This makes a full pint—more than you can buy ready-made for three times the money. It is pure, and tastes good.

You can feel it take right hold of a cough or cold in a way that means business. The cough may be dry, hoarse and tight, or may be persistently loose from the formation of phlegm. The cause is the same—inflamed membranes—and this Pinex and Syrup combination will stop it—usually in 24 hours or less. Splendid, too, for bronchial asthma or hoarseness.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway pine extract and palatable guaiacol, and is famous the world over for its prompt effect upon coughs.

Beware of substitutes. Ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

WOMEN WITH BOBBED HAIR VERY EASILY GET RID OF GRAY HAIRS

With Color Glands Normal Nature Keeps Hair Natural Shade

SENSIBLE ADVICE TO WOMEN TURNING GRAY

Everyone knows if their color glands and hair roots are active and normal they will continue indefinitely to have rich, natural colored hair entirely free of gray, or off-colored locks, so why use dyes or tints?

A doctor several years ago asked himself this question: "If with certain medicines I can stimulate my patient's other organs, why not rub a stimulating tonic into the scalp that will revive, strengthen and tone up these inactive glands so that nature in her own inimitable way will resume putting plenty of pigment into the hair tubes? Surely the hair will then again resume its original shade and color regardless of the users age or previous condition of their hair."

REMARKABLE DISCOVERY

He didn't want an artificial dye or tint and it of course must be harmless and something that could be used for years and years without the slightest injury to hair or scalp. Just like a tonic that builds up a person's strength after some long wasting illness, he wanted a tonic that would revive and stimulate the inactive, weak, or dormant hair roots and color glands.

Under the name of Lea's Hair Tonic anyone may now purchase the scalp food and tonic he finally perfected. For several years hair dressers and specialists have been using it. Results are so natural, gradual and nice that men as well as women use it.

It doesn't stain the scalp. One's friends seldom notice the gradual change and to test what it will do one need only apply it to some small spot for a week or two and watch results.

Men and women in all walks of life have been amazed at the younger appearance that comes with the disappearance of gray hairs from their head. Evidently one need never become gray if they keep the scalp and roots toned up with an occasional massage with Lea's Hair Tonic.

If any reader desires to try a bottle of Lea's Hair Tonic on the maker's absolute guarantee of satisfaction or money back, they should purchase a bottle at the drug store or pin a dollar bill to this advertisement and send with name and address plainly written to Lea's Tonic Co., Brentwood, Md. $1 bottles parcels post anywhere with full directions.

No one need have gray or off-colored hair any [illegible]

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action: it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist.

Look at Child's Tongue if Sick, Cross, Feverish

Hurry, Mother! Remove poisons from stomach and bowels

Give "California Fig Syrup" at once if billious or constipated

Look at the tongue mother! If coated, it is a sure sign that your little one's stomach, liver and bowels need a gentle, thorough cleansing at once.

When peevish, cross, listless, pale, doesn't sleep, doesn't eat or act naturally, or is feverish, stomach sour, breath bad; has stomach-ache, sore throat, diarrhoea, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Fig Syrup," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of the little bowels without griping, and you have a well, playful child again.

You needn't coax sick children to take this harmless, "fruity laxative"; they love its delicious taste, and it always makes them feel splendid.

Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Fig Syrup," which has directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. To be sure you get the genuine ask to see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other kind with contempt.

BUYING IN NEW HAVEN PUZZLE TO 'STREET'

By FRANK H. MELOON, Financial Editor

Latest buying wave in New Haven Railroad, which carried the stock to 48, contrasting with its extreme low of 12 in 1921, is a puzzle intriguing the "Street," both in Boston and New York. Rumors were afloat regarding dividend resumption and also linking the New Haven buying with Delaware & Hudson interests, all unconfirmed. Profit taking appeared at the peak. The one sure thing about New Haven is that its gain in earning power has been steady for a long time past.

Exclusive information printed in this column Monday to the effect that automotive registrations in every New England State were higher for the year to date than at the same time last year was followed by another interesting announcement. This was embodied in a Detroit dispatch stating a pronounced upswing in retail sales of several automobile companies was taking place.

There are two ways by which a company can work into red ink. One is by doing too small a business. The other is doing a large business on too narrow a margin of profits. The last way works more quickly than the first.

We have already pointed out in this column that the man whose property has advanced in value during the past few years expects to benefit thereby, and that stockholders of public utilities believe appreciation of plant values should be taken into consideration in connection with their properties, as well as "actual investment."

* * *

Another factor little regarded in careless comments is earning power. Charles Evans Hughes, former Secretary of State, in arguing for the railroads, another sort of public utility, said: "Earning capacity is an essential fact to be considered in the determination of value. Consideration must be given to earnings from just and reasonable rates in the past and at the present time and to the probable trend of earnings in the future. The value of property results from the use to which it is put and varies with the profitableness of that use, present and prospective, actual and anticipated. The value of property, generally speaking, is determined by its productiveness."

FORBES' VIEWS ON DUTIES OF EMPLOYERS

By B. C. FORBES

NEW YORK, Jan. 26.—Why do so many small businesses fail?

And why do so many large enterprises succeed?

One reason is because many small business men do not know the difference between financial astrology and financial astronomy.

* * *

BIG MEN are applying themselves more and more to the scientific study of finance, of industry, of distribution, of transportation, of engineering, of credit, of labor, of social and community conditions, of human nature. Astrology is not accepted as an exact science. Astronomy is.

B. C. Forbes.

In other words too many small business men simply guess; "they go by rule-of-thumb"; they see only what is directly in front of their eyes. Brainy modern executives strive to develop comprehensive knowledge, to gather comprehensive information, to take a comprehensive viewpoint, to cultivate comprehensive imagination.

OUR SHREWDEST wealthy investors have learned that what they invest in is not a factory or other plant, but, in the final analysis, in human nature. Our most progressive financial institutions have learned the same thing.

What, therefore, do these investors do before investing heavily in an enterprise or, in the case of financial institutions, before advancing a large amount of credit or undertaking the issuance of new securities for a concern?

Briefly, they have a thorough examination made, not merely of the physical possessions of the company, but of its human possessions.

SOME ENLIGHTENED heads of large organizations now call in trained outsiders to go over their whole structure from top to bottom with a view of ascertaining definitely what goes on in the minds of the workers of all ranks.

* * *

AFTER ALL, does not even a moment's reflection bring home to us that everything depends on the human element, on human beings?

BINGHAM REPORTS NEW ORE SHOWING STRONG

Following telegram has been received from the Victoria property of the Bingham Mines Co. at Salt Lake City: "Face of the 1400-foot level now underneath the 1300 body of ore at the Victoria. Preparations under way to start raise. Will probably take three weeks to complete same. Again have strong showing of ore in north face of the 1300 level."

Wall Street Gossip

NASHAWENA Mills of New Bedford took no action on quarterly dividend due at this time. For past two quarters $1.50 share had been paid, previous to which quarterly rate was $2 share.

STEEL declared regular quarterly dividends of $1.75 on both common and preferred stock, common payable March 30, and preferred payable Feb. 28.

UNITED States Steel Corp. reports net earnings of $53,502,525 after taxes for quarter ended Dec. 31, against $52,626,826 in preceding quarter and $42,280,465 in fourth quarter, 1925.

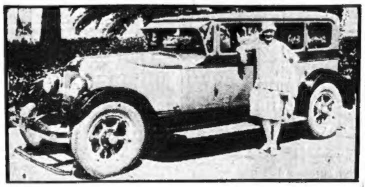
MID-WEEK MOTOR NEWS

BY J. HERBERT DODGE, Automobile Editor

142 MILES PER HOUR



WORLD CHAMPION AUTO DRIVER

Mlle. Joan La Costa recently set a record of 145.14 miles an hour over a course at Jacksonville Beach, Fla. She drives an Auburn 88 for her personal use.

13 MODELS IN GRAHAM LINE

With the addition of a two-ton truck to the Graham Brothers' line, the various models of this company are able to take care of 91 per cent. of all transportation requirements. With the various standard and special bodies, Graham trucks are now adapted to all the needs of more than 400 lines of business.

"From a single model in 1921, Graham Brothers' line has now grown to 13 models in capacities from ¾ to 2-ton," said Mr. C. S. Henshaw, president of the Henshaw Motor Co., Boston Dodge Brothers Dealers. "During the same time the Graham Brothers' Division of Dodge Brothers has grown 1250 per cent. in factory facilities. These plants are being operated at full capacity, and it is a foregone conclusion that 1927 is to be another record breaker for Graham Brothers' sales." Dodge Brothers, dealers, are prepared this year to handle the greatest increase in the business in their history.

"The past year marked the introduction of Graham Brothers' two-ton truck at a price nearly $600 lower than any two-ton truck had before been sold. The one-ton (G-Boy) also made its bow in 1926 as an important development in design and weight distribution. Noteworthy improvements were also incorporated in the 1½-ton models. All of these improvements, added to the rugged strength and handsome appearance for which Graham Brothers' trucks are so well known, have been welcomed by truck buyers."

Production facilities of Graham Brothers, truck manufacturing division of Dodge Brothers, Inc., were expanded over 40 per cent. in 1926, the first full year of Dodge Brothers' control of this company, according to an official announcement.

Shipments of trucks and motor coaches in 1926 totaled 37,463 units, a gain of 55.7 per cent. over the 24,056 shipped in 1925. Graham Brothers' best previous year. Shipments of ¾-ton commercial cars totaled 29,830, against 26,657, a gain of 11.9 per cent.

RECORDS FELL IN 1926

"The year 1926 watched a number of records fall," says Frank C. Brown, general manager of the Oakland Motor company of New England.

In these days of stiff competition a business increase of 20 per cent. is considered remarkable—and 50 per cent. is tremendous. The Oakland Motor Company enjoyed an increase in production last year of 212 per cent. The reason is simple. General Motors has built so many dollars of extra value into the new Pontiac Six and the Greater Oakland Six that their public acceptance was immediate.

"The Oakland Motor Company of New England was even ahead of the record which the factory set up. Its increase of 212 per cent. was surpassed by our unusual record of 234 per cent. For every one hundred cars sold in 1925 by the Oakland dealer organization, three hundred and thirty-four cars were sold in 1926.

"The new models of Pontiac and Oakland which proved to be such a centre of attraction at the New York automobile show, are now on exhibition at the Oakland Motor Company salesrooms, No. 655 Beacon street.

SPORT COUPE NEWEST OUT

A new sport coupe, roomy and comfortable with space for three passengers to make themselves "right at home," is the latest addition to the Oldsmobile line. It was shown for the first time at the New York automobile show and shipments will begin the latter part of February, it is announced by Harry Dunn, general manager of the Oldsmobile Company of New England.

The drop seat compartment, made with plenty of room for two persons, is formed by raising the rear deck, and it is fully upholstered. To insure perfect comfort, the seat cushion and back have been given the same spring construction as the interior seat.

The upper structure of the sport coupe is of weatherproof tan fabric equipped with chromium plated landau bars. The fabric is in pleasing harmony with the Czarina brown duco finish of the body. Maroon molding is used and the striping is in cream. Natural wood or disc wheels are optional.

HUBBS JOINS DURANT STAFF

George C. Hubbs, formerly sales manager of the Ajax (now Nash Light Six) division of the Nash Motor Company, and prior to that assistant sales manager of Dodge Brothers, Inc., has joined the president's staff of Durant Motors, Inc.

Mr. Hubbs, whose offices will be in New York, will assist W. C. Durant in connection with the various Durant motor car interests, which include the Star, the Flint and the Locomobile divisions of the corporation.

X-RAY

Examination, consultation, trial treatment and medicine absolutely free to all who call before Jan. 30th. The wonderful power of the X-Ray and mercury quartz light treatment is proved by the fact that they are accomplishing wonders in diseases of every description—catarrh, bronchitis, deafness, stomach, nerve and skin disease. No matter what your disease may be, remember Daniel J. Walsh, M. D., 18 Boylston St., will make good the above offer.

LUMBAGO

MRS. ALFRED LE CROIX, 380 COLUMBUS AVE., BOSTON, SAYS:—"I had lumbago so bad that the pain would double me up like a jackknife. My body seemed filled with aches and pains, my shoulders, hip and back. I had been to a number of doctors who failed to help me, and advised an X-ray. I went to Daniel J. Walsh, M. D., and his treatment was just the right thing for me, as it relieved me of all my aches and pains."

STOMACH

MISS DOROTHY OTTIGNON, RESIDING AT WILMINGTON, VERMONT, NOW EMPLOYED AT GROTON SCHOOL, GROTON, MASS., SAYS: "I had been troubled with stomach trouble for some time. My father, who is employed by the Boston & Maine R. R., now located at Ayer, Mass., had been successfully treated for stomach trouble by Daniel J. Walsh, M. D., and he took me to Daniel J. Walsh, M. D., who treated me with equal success. So I add my name to the many who recommend Daniel J. Walsh, M. D., to those who suffer from stomach trouble."

MR. JOHN M. WHEATON, 72 CENTRE ST., LYNN, MASS., SAYS:—"I had stomach trouble for the past two years, so severe that would be doubled up with pain. What I ate did not agree with me, but would cause distress. I was constipated and had frequent headaches. I consulted Daniel J. Walsh, M. D., and his treatment has made me feel so well that I have no hesitation in recommending him to all who suffered as I did."

MR. W. R. STEWART, 18a WEBSTER ST., ATLANTIC, MASS., SAYS:—"I had suffered from stomach trouble for three years. I felt so bad that I will not attempt to describe my symptoms. I had Daniel J. Walsh, M. D., treat me, and his treatment has been so successful in my case that I am pleased to recommend him to all who suffer from chronic diseases."

Did We Ever Live on the Moon?

This Shows How Our Earth Looks to Moon-Dwellers

THIS SHOWS HOW THE EARTH WOULD LOOK TO US IF WE COULD BE TRANSPORTED TO THE MOON AND LOOK BACK THROUGH SPACE AT OUR WORLD

You have probably read Jules Verne's story of a trip to the moon and his story of a long trip on the bottom of the sea. His "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea" has been changed to a reality.

In the big war there was great excitement when a German submarine suddenly appeared in Boston Harbor, having crossed the Atlantic under water unseen by eyes that watched.

And other German submarines were able to pass through the Straits of Gibraltar into the Mediterranean and work havoc, unseen by watchers on Gibraltar's rock and by submarine chasers.

Jules Verne's idea of the submarine is now commonplace reality. For all we know, the idea of a trip to the moon may also come true in future ages.

It is at least NOT IMPOSSIBLE. The problem involved is to overcome the power of the earth's gravitation. Once the traveler were shot through space BEYOND the point where the earth's power of attraction is greater than that of the moon, that traveler's conveyance would fly down (or up, as you choose, for there is no up or down in the universe) to the moon's surface.

It would, if not controlled, travel at a horrible speed, the velocity increasing with every foot of travel. If the moon had an atmosphere as thick as our air a steel compartment carrying travelers to the moon would probably melt and disappear, because of the intense friction when it struck the moon's atmosphere, just as the shooting stars you see in our air are huge pieces of rock and iron ore melting with the high speed when they strike OUR atmosphere.

But anything that man can imagine he can do, if he has power and will back of it.

A conveyance that would not melt when it struck the air, one to resist almost any heat, might be invented. Or, much simpler, the earth fliers as they approached the moon and found the speed getting too high, could spread out wings that would act as a parachute and let them down slowly.

Just how they would get BACK again is another question. They probably WOULDN'T GET BACK.

But real scientists think little of dying if they can gain their point. Many officers, doctors and ordinary soldiers have allowed themselves to be inoculated with deadly diseases for the sake of scientific experiment.

Many a scientist would volunteer to go to the moon if he could take a little radio apparatus with him and send back descriptions of what he saw.

However, that's another story.

This is to show you what sort of a gigantic moon travelers from the earth would see if they looked from the moon's surface back toward our world. The big "moon" in this picture is our earth as it would look from the moon.

Defining Culture

What is culture? A highbrow once defined it as—

> "A habit of mind instinct with purpose, cognizant of the tendency and connection of human achievement, and industrious to discern between the great and the trivial."

That will bear brooding over. But it is defective because limited to the mind, whereas true culture means bringing to its best all the possibilities within us.

A cultured person, therefore, is one who can think sanely and widely, who keeps his emotional power keen, but under control, and who, however high his station, does not show self-worship.

Quite Fit to Drive

According to a German doctor, women should not be allowed to drive automobiles, because "their nervous systems cannot react quickly and rationally in crises."

In Germany, perhaps. Here they have to react quickly or die and kill, too. The crisis is the normal situation to an American driver.

Our streets would be full of dead and wounded if the thousands of women drivers could not "react quickly and rationally."

'JUST HIS JOB' IS BAR TO FUN

By DR. FRANK CRANE

OUT in California I once talked with a man who made a living from the pleasant occupation of flying kites.

All he had to do was to wait for a bright sunny day when the breeze was sweeping in from the sea, and then go to some vacant lot near the edge of the town, and spend his afternoon in the sport of kite flying.

And he got paid handsomely because attached to his string of kites was an advertising banner which attracted attention for miles around.

Here was a man whose job was just fun, whose work was play. If anyone ever should have had enjoyment out of his work, he was the man.

But no. Flying kites was "just his job." He said he was responsible for keeping the kites up so long, that he had to watch them all the time, that he couldn't quit when he wanted to as can boys when they fly kites.

Spectators who watched Pete DePaolo, the famous racing automobile pilot, drive to victory on the track, were kept tingling with excitement at the spectacular thrills he furnished.

Yet to a reporter who interviewed him he said he got no special thrill out of driving a race. It was "just his job," the day's work, how he made his living.

"For a real thrill," he said, "I turn to golf. I get more thrills out of a game of golf than I ever do out of driving 130 miles an hour on the banked oval of a racing track."

On the other hand, professional golf experts get less thrill from playing golf than from driving a fast car on the road. For them golf is "just their job."

Fun, it seems, when it becomes the source of livelihood, loses its thrill.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

"HOW can you believe in God when things like this happen?" says a woman out of the bitterness of her doubt.

This is the story she tells: Fourteen years ago her friend, Mrs. G., was left a widow. She had two children—a boy of ten and a girl of eight. The small insurance went to pay hospital bills, funeral expenses and the cost of moving. Then Mrs. G. went to work.

Only those who have faced such tragedy can know what the following years held of heartaches and loneliness. Always she was hounded by the dread of what might happen if she lost her job or if her health gave out. Day and night merged into a drab nightmare of fear and weariness and gnawing grief. But she kept on. Somehow she managed to put the children through high school.

Then the boy grew unruly. He needed a firm hand and she was home so little. He ran the streets, drifted in with evil companions—got into jams with the police. Finally he ran away to sea. She has not heard from him for six years. She doesn't know whether he is living or not. Sometimes it seems to her harried soul that it would be more merciful if she could know that he was safely, decently dead.

The girl was frail, but of fine character. She worked hard at school and made a splendid record in spite of frequent spells of illness. She wanted to be a teacher and somehow, between them, they managed a course at normal school. The mother was nearly exhausted when that was done, but there was a dawning peace in her heart. It seemed at last as if better times were coming. The girl's health was greatly improved; she had a good position, the weary mother could stay home at last and rest. It would be sweet after the terrible years.

The Blow Struck.

Then suddenly, swiftly, like the lunge of a fanged beast through the dark, the blow was struck. The daughter fell ill and in a week died of pneumonia.

"And yet you say there is a God," cries the one who tells the story. "You speak of justice and love and a Great Plan and things like this happen!"

"Yes, I know, faith flickers in the blackness of such a tragedy. And there's blackness like that everywhere. A baby tortured and killed by a fiend. A mother ground to death beneath the wheels of a speeding car. A loyal, honest man robbed of his job in old age that some worthless young upstart may have employment, tragedy everywhere. Heartbreaking injustice.

But wait—

How do you or I know that it's injustice?

How do you or I know that the death of her daughter was really cruel?

All through those hounded years that poor, struggling mother had one prayer upon her lips. Every second of her day she prayed—"Give my darling the best, dear God. Let me carry the pain and the burden, but give my darling the best."

She prayed that as all good mothers prayed that. Perhaps she did not use those very words, but that desire was the motive power behind her wrinkled hands, her weary feet, her fainting heart. She did not know what was "the best," but somehow she felt that God would know. She'd do her part—surely He would do His.

Might Be "Best."

And now Death has come. And she thinks God has failed her. But has He? Might this not be "the best" for which she'd prayed?

To go out young, unscarred by life, with dreams still laid like folded, shining wings across untroubled eyes—is that the worst? Or may it not, perhaps, be the best" that God can grant to a young, questioning soul?

THERE IS NO GOD!
ELSIE ROBINSON
WAIT UNTIL THE EVIDENCE IS ALL IN.

How do we know. How dare we judge UNTIL THE EVIDENCE IS ALL IN?

It isn't all in yet. It won't be until we, ourselves, have passed around the turning of the trail and seen what waits us on the other side. We can't tell, until then, whether these things we now call tragedy are really cruel and unfair, or whether they are part of God's unfailing mercy and wise love.

As for me, I'm sure they'll all seem right some day. I cannot always see the love or wisdom in them now. I see these little mangled segments of our life through eyes made dark with tears, and I, too, cry: "Is there a God?" But often, looking back, I have seen how some other happenings which I thought cruel, were really fortunate. And also I have seen that nothing in the plan of natural life is without cause, and nothing is wasted. So surely He will not destroy the flower of our love—or make a jest of our poor, stumbling prayers.

Excursions in Science

By Garrett P. Serviss

WE ARE told that the temperature in the interior of the stars rises to millions of degrees. This is necessarily a mathematical conclusion, for nobody has been inside a star to make observations, and only mathematics can work in such a degree of heat. A very few thousand degrees mark the border lines of indirect human experience, while two or three hundred suffice to limit all personal inquiries.

We are also told that the stars (including our sun) are radiating themselves away, and that within some trillions of years those that now exist will have scattered all their substance into an impalable form of energy.

Whether, in the meantime, successors are preparing to take the place of the spendthrift luminaries, which now decorate both nearer and farther space with their picturesque scintillations, is another question. You see what a tremendous field for speculation, filled with grandiose possibilities, modern astronomy has opened before it.

Even the earth, which some were beginning to think safe in its passivity and physical insignificance, has had the spectre of mysterious radio-activity held up before it—somewhat intimidatingly. Dr. Richard C. Tolman, the California physical chemist, is credited with the suggestion that "future research may prove the atoms of terrestrial matter to be amenable to some setting-off process roughly analogous to the touching of a match to gunpowder."

Connecting this with the possibility that new stars, "which burst suddenly into view with a brilliance born of terrific temperatures and enormous radiation, may have been set off by a cosmic fuse of some sort," Science Service seems quite within reason in remarking that "obviously the control of such forces on earth by man would involve fearful responsibilities."

It would, indeed! The possessor of such control would have realized in a form as novel as effective, the wicked Roman Emperor's wish that all mankind had but one neck.

The new view of the way in which the universe may be "running down," starts with energy in its essential form: the older view started with heat, a vibratory form of energy exciting the molecules of matter. But now we are assured that matter is only a particular form, or phase of energy.

By radiation the matter of the stars is "degraded" into "scattered energy." Thus they dissipate themselves into "a chaos of worthless, scattered energy."

"Worthless!" But by what standard? By ours only. Perhaps there is some other place in the universe than this speck of rotating rock, where standards of worth are determined.

However, we have really done very well and seem entitled to indulge in a little harmless boasting. Nothing is better calculated to give us such a privilege than the fact that our science has taught us to recognize the humility of our origin.

But we must be perpetually on guard in our swift advance. Science has embarked us in a high-powered car that spurns the ground.
